and Wheat Price.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 13.—(AP)—J. P. Henican, president of the New Orleans Cotton Exchange, was recalled before the senate committee investigating cotton futures after he had testified today so that he might deny he believed the present price for cotton was too high.

In answer to a question by Senator Heflin, democrat, Alabama, the New Orleans man had been recorded as having expressed the opinion that cotton was selling for more than it was worth.

Heflin replied that he was "utterly astounded" by the statement and later, after Henican's reappearance, the Alabama senator said he was glad the statement had been corrected.

The assertion reached the New Orleans exchange and a telegram was dispatched to learn whether he had been correctly quoted. His request to be recalled followed.

Heflin said tonight that the original statement had not been expunged from the record.

Carl Williams, the cotton representative on the farm board, was charged in testimony before the senate committee investigating cotton exchanges today by C. L. Stealey, former general manager of the Oklahoma Cotton Growers' Association, with being responsible for what he termed the board's failure to stabilize cotton and wheat prices.

Saying that Williams had divulged to him an "absolutely dependable method" by which he could "foretell the future course of the market," Stealey testified that co-operatives, including the Oklahoma association, had lost heavily in gambling operations by following Williams' advice.

"It seems logical," he said, "that this man would desire to protect his victims," explaining that this could be done only by keeping the price down.

The committee is investigating speculative activities on the New York, Chicago and New Orleans Cotton Exchanges in an attempt to ascertain the cause of the present depressed market.

Stealey's statements were denied in a telegram from the Oklahoma association, but Senator Heflin, democrat, Alabama, a member of the committee, said the farm board had been "decidedly unfriendly" toward a proposal to raise the present loan basis from 16 to 20 cents a pound, as suggested by southern senators.

Stealey urged that officers of the association be called, and Chairman Townsend said the committee would decide later.

Newspaper Editor.

The testimony of the Oklahoma man, who described himself as a farmer and producer as well as a newspaper editor, came in the midst of a long examination of J. F. Henican, president of the New Orleans Cotton Exchange, and Edward S. Butler, its former president.

Butler contended that southern deliveries as denominated by the New York Cotton Exchange "have been detrimental to speculation and have acted to intimidate investors and speculators to such an extent that it has been impossible to get them to trade in cotton this year, resulting in the price being nearly 3 cents a pound lower than last year."

Heflin expressed the opinion that the cause of the depressed market was due to threatened legislation by congress and increasing competition of Indian cotton.

During the hearing a telegram from Chairman Legge, of the farm board, was read by Chairman Townsend. The telegram said that the cotton board operated in Memphis, Tenn., had taken under consideration the suggestion that the loan basis for cotton be raised gradually, but that the "final conclusion was to leave the proposal with the board." It added that the advisability of the proposal was "very doubtful."

Outlining his charges against Williams, Stealey said the cotton representative on the board was one of the "most plausible and likeable men in America and can easily persuade people who are not well informed to travel for a way in the course which he would have them take."

"Gradually," the witness said, "he sold his ideas to the cotton co-operatives of the south. In 1927-28, after having accepted this man's formulas, they gambled on the New York Cotton Exchange and paid as gamblers nearly always to the extent of the resources under their control."

"We do not know the exact extent of those losses," he said, "but with reference to our own state of Oklahoma, we know that the losses were very heavy."

He added that "this gentleman is so plausible and so thoroughly convincing to those who do not know him very well, and he himself is one of those—that we would not be at all surprised to know that he had persuaded himself to believe that this gambling on the cotton exchange by co-operatives was done over his protest."

Tomorrow the committee will hear Will Clayton, of Anderson, Clayton and Company, Houston, Texas, cotton brokers, a firm which has been charged by Heflin with exerting an "overwhelming influence" on the cotton markets.

ers Loses, 60 to 12.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 13.—(United News.)—Passage of the $100,000,000 tax cut resolution by an overwhelming vote of the senate, probably tomorrow, was assured today when that body took up the measure recently passed by the house.

Leaders failed tonight in an effort to fix a time for a vote tomorrow, but it was generally agreed a final vote would come then.

Two votes today revealed the sentiment for speedy passage of the measure as it stands. By a vote of 60 to 15, the senate adopted a resolution of Chairman Smoot, of the finance committee, displacing the tariff bill with the tax bill.

An effort by Senator McMaster, republican, South Dakota, to amend the resolution, lost by an even larger vote, 60 to 12. It proposed that $100,000,000 of the amount be applied to reduction of freight rates on agricultural produce.

One major amendment still is pending. It is sponsored by Senator Couzens, republican, Michigan, and proposes reduction of the capital gain and capital stock tax from 12 1/2 per cent to 10 per cent. This move is doomed to failure as the treasury opposes it.

On other amendment and one substitute which likewise are conceded no chance of adoption, are sponsored by Senators Brookhart, republican, Iowa, and Thomas, democrat, Oklahoma. Brookhart proposes a new scale of corporation tax rates. The Oklahoma senator's proposal is that $100,000,000 be applied to road building and $80,000,000 to public buildings.

Sensors Borah, republican, Idaho, and Norris, republican, Nebraska, led the fight on the resolution, contending that corporations already have passed taxes on to the consumer. The corporation, as well as individual tax rates, would be cut 1 per cent by the resolution.

"This proposal is poor business," Norris said. "It was poor business for the president to send it here."

MURDER THEORY
FOUND UNTENABLE

Witnesses Testify Miss
Mason Often Was Moody
and Despondent—Tried Poison Death.

The theory of murder was definitely thrown into the discard Friday afternoon, when a coroner's jury summoned to the DeKalb county jail of office by Sheriff Jake Hall returned a verdict of suicide, over the body of Miss Detta Mason, of Douglasville, governor who disappeared from an Atlanta home last April.

The body was found near Decatur Wednesday afternoon by a man seeking cedars for Christmas trees. A .38 caliber revolver was found a few feet away. The inquest was tentatively set for Friday morning and then postponed until Saturday, when the theory of the possibility of a false note being sent to Miss Mason's employer was advanced.

Specimens of the young woman's handwriting were brought from Winston, her home, Friday morning and compared with the note left at the home of G. W. Baumann, of Atlanta, on April 18. They were found to be written by the same person.

As this handwriting was identical with the theory that Miss Mason had been lured from the home, murdered and a false note sent to Mr. Baumann, was discarded and the inquest ordered held over the body of the girl Friday night.

The inquest was held at the home of a local dentist who had performed bridge work in her mouth.

Many Witnesses Appear.

A large number of witnesses, character and otherwise, were summoned to the inquest, and they testified that the young woman often had been moody and depressed. It was brought out that in February she had attempted to take her own life at the Terminal station by drinking a dose of poison. She was treated at a hospital, where she gave the name of Ethel Moore and an address in Birmingham. Mrs. Frances Johnson, of Hapeville, befriended the young woman and she recuperated from the effects of the poison at Mrs. Johnson's home.

Despite rumors that still another note had been found near the body Friday, and that it was so much evidence was introduced at the inquest, the coroner's jury reached the conclusion that Miss Mason met death by her own hand, after the note to her last employer was read.

Inquest Conducted.

Coroner E. Thomas conducted the inquest in the office of the county jail at 12 o'clock in the afternoon. Nine witnesses were summoned and there were a large number in addition who testified concerning the girl's disposition and general characteristics.

The jury, headed by Dr. W. S. Anley, foreman, was composed of J. W. Bailey, D. R. Roberts, L. M. Rogers, J. T. Horn and J. T. Dalton.

Among the principal witnesses heard at the inquest were Sheriff Jake Hall, who told of the finding of the body; Dr. W. G. Allen and his son, W. W. Allen, who identified the body by the performance of Dr. Allen, a local dentist; G. W. Baumann, by whom Miss Mason was employed up until the time of her death; and V. L. Barlow, an 18-year-old employee of a downtown bank, whom Miss Mason had taught at a South Carolina orphanage and was instrumental in obtaining employment for him.

Two young daughters and a son of G. W. Baumann testified as to the character of their former governess. When asked as to Miss Mason's attitude toward the inquest, the witness stated that she was "good about helping with lessons" but never discussed her personal affairs with them.

Letter Introduced.

The letter to Baumann, which has figured so prominently in the case, was introduced at the inquest. It was called upon to identify the pistol with which the girl took her own life, but he could not positively do so. He stated that it was similar to the one that was missing from his home after the sudden departure of Miss Mason, but that there was no number upon the gun, he could not positively state that it was his.

One thing upon which the jury could reach no decision was as to the motive for her self destruction. There was some difference in the testimony as to her outlook upon life, by character witnesses. Some stated that she was morose and melancholy, while others stated that she was always bright and cheerful.

Two close relatives were present at the hearing and they stated that Miss Mason was a "good girl and serious-minded." These two were an elder sister, Miss Ruth Mason and an uncle, L. W. Mason, both of Winston. They left shortly after the inquest, taking the body of the governess with them to Douglasville, where funeral services will be conducted today. Interment will be at Pray's Mill Primitive Baptist church.

Several Atlanta physicians arrived at the DeKalb jail too late for the inquest, but were given a chance to view the remains. They doubted that the single bullet brought about the cracks in the skull.

NATIONALISTS WIN

IN CHINA FIGHTING

Supremacy at Arms Again Brings Nation Near
Unity—Foreign Consuls
Inspect Sectors.

BY RANDALL GOULD.
United News Staff Correspondent.

SHANGHAI, Dec. 13.—(United News.)—Nationalist troops took the offensive in three sectors today in an effort to put down rebellions and unify China once for all.

They were reported to have Kwangsi and Ironsides forces on the run near Canton, to be launching a general attack on General Tang Song-Chi's army near Chengchow, and to be crowding in on mutinous regiments north of Nanking.

Victorious in the three movements, they will have removed the most dangerous immediate threats to Chinese unity, although three great war lords, Yen-Hsi-Shan, Feng Yu-Hsiang and Chang Hsueh-Liang, could disturb the balance any time they wish.

In the Canton sector the nationalists appeared to have achieved their greatest triumph. The government's official news agency, Kuo Min, reported that forces were rounding up the remnants of rebel divisions around Canton and expressed belief the loyalists had decisively ended the drive against the southern metropolis.

Thousands Killed.

The agency estimated that the Ironsides troops, attempting to march on Canton from the north, had lost 7,000 in killed and wounded and that the Kwangsi rebels, advancing from the west, lost 5,000 killed before they were turned back.

The battle against the Ironsides lasted 24 hours. That against the Kwangsi continued for two days, with Nanking and Canton gunboats landing marines at Tientsin and moving down the Kwangsi river with machine guns as they tried to cross the North river, to effect a junction with the Ironsides.

The river was reported choked with corpses.

In Honan province, where General Tang Sheng-Chi took refuge with 35,000 men, the government forces went out with a heavy hand. After three days of planning, a general attack was launched west of Chengchow, where Tang had his headquarters.

Additional mutineers, who seized Pukow across the Yangtze river from Nanking and engaged government forces, were defeated north of the "squeeze" more at Shantung. Provincial forces were ordered to advance southward against them.

MANCHURIA REPORTS
RUSSIAN AGGRESSION.

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.

The Manchurian government announced Friday in Mukden that Russian forces were continuing military operations in western Manchuria. Chinese positions in the Kiangnan mountains were said to have been bombed.

Previously sporadic raids by Russian troops on Manchurian soil had been reported.

These warlike operations occurred several days after China and Russia agreed upon negotiations for peaceful settlement of the controversy over operation of the Chinese Eastern railway in Manchuria.

Russian forces have held all of Manchuria west of the Kiangnan range since the evacuation of the Chinese soldiers which began about November 20.

CONSULS INSPECT
NATIONALISTS' CONDITION.

HARBIN, Manchuria, Dec. 13.—(United News.)—An international commission, including the American, British, French and Japanese consular officials here left on a special Chinese Eastern railway train for Manchuria today to ascertain the safety of 250 foreigners in that district.

No direct word has come from the foreigners there since the soviet army occupied the district in a punitive expedition against Chinese and white Russians.

I. C. C. EXERCISES
POWER TO COMPEL
RAIL CONSTRUCTION

WASHINGTON, Dec. 13.—(AP)—The interstate commerce commission today for the first time asserted its power to compel a railroad to build, against its will, extensive new lines, when it directed the Union Pacific system to construct 181 miles of line between Crane and Crescent Lake, Ore., at an approximate cost of $9,000,000.

Because of the principle involved, the proceedings drew in all the railroads of the Pacific northwest and in handing down its verdict the commission also ruled that it had the power to compel the railroad to undertake the work. The Oregon-Washington Railroad and Navigation Company, a subsidiary of the Union Pacific, was directed to begin the actual construction.

The complaint brought by the Oregon public utility commission against the central portion of the state had not been provided with the proper rail facilities and that the line from Crane to Crescent Lake was badly needed. In the opinion, the commission said the complaint was justified.

Here's the kind of example worthwhile to set!
A bunch of newspaper advertising men, who have hired out to these many years of The Atlanta Constitution, Friday informed the Opportunities Editor that they will take care of Charles and his family during 1930.

Today we tell the story of little Billy and his mother... a bright and handsome boy of six years and his mama who has lost her health and no longer can bend over the looms and earn the money to support Billy and herself.

The father deserted. Just left home for work one morning. He didn't show up at the job, and Billy and his mother have never heard from him again. When papa didn't come home that night, Billy's mother began to worry. She got a job. It was hard work, in a mill.

That was the beginning of mother's breakdown. Worry and hard work. Little enough to eat. Ill health set in. One cannot keep on working in a mill when one is ill, and so that job gave out. Now there is no income, except the $240 worth of 1930 happiness and good cheer for a family which hasn't had much happiness and comfort in the past few years, with father sick and mother not strong.

The story of Charles and his brave struggle to make ends meet struck a responsive chord in the hearts of these men who earn their daily bread by selling display advertising to local firms. And it was with a mighty happy tone in his voice that Herbert Porter, director of advertising for The Constitution, announced to the writer that his boys would stand by Charles' folks during 1930.

Once before the news folks on this paper accepted their opportunity to do a good deed by one of the ten neediest families. That was several years ago, when, in just a few short hours, every dollar needed for an opportunity family was raised.

Now, who's next? Who else will come forward and furnish the wherewithal to relieve the heavy burden from the shoulders of a widowed mother and her little brood? Who else will partake of the milk of human kindness this happy Yuletide season and give to Atlanta's neediest families? The check-book line forms right in your own office or home.

With the first week of the Opportunity campaign practically gone, only $803.25 has been raised to relieve suffering in the 40 needy families in need. Of this amount, the Fox theater, which opens Christmas day in

GRUNDY DECISION
EXPECTED MONDAY

Expulsion, While Leaders
Say No Steps Can Be Taken.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 13.—(AP)—Early disposition of the contest facing Senator Joseph Grundy, of Pennsylvania, was planned today as Chairman Shortridge, of the elections committee, called a meeting Monday to consider the Nye resolution to displace the newest senator from membership.

Meanwhile, Senator Grundy, genial and affable to friend and critic, went about his usual senatorial duties, acquainted from the inside with the activities on which he has looked for so many days from the outside in his campaign for a high protective tariff bill.

Another of many strange coincidences which have featured Mr. Grundy's sudden entry into public life occurred today when his first vote as a senator happened to be to displace the tariff bill for which he has labored so hard.

The first roll call confronting him was on a motion to take up the tax reduction resolution and to displace temporarily the tariff. He voted with 59 other republicans and democrats to speed the tax resolution.

In calling a meeting of the elections committee, Chairman Shortridge said he expected an early report would be made to the senate on the resolution of Senator Nye, republican, North Dakota. He said no witnesses had been summoned.

Leaders of all factions in the senate yesterday spoke against the Nye resolution, contending that the senate is without authority to challenge the credentials of a legally-serving governor of a sovereign state.

Regardless of the legal argument, Senator Nye is standing by his contention that the senate—to be consistent with its vote against William S. Vare, of Pennsylvania—must reject Grundy. His resolution states that Grundy was appointed by a governor who was nominated by the same primary with Vare, and that the governor was on a ticket which appeared as a combined ticket of the two.

The resolution further states that Grundy raised or contributed $400,000 of the $1,800,000 fund of the Fisher-Pepper ticket in the 1926 primary. Governor Fisher appointed Grundy to the senate.

WILL HAYS DROPPED BY DRAMA LEAGUE

Milliken Also Off Board of Directors of N. Y. Organization.

NEW YORK, Dec. 13.—(AP)—Will H. Hays, president of the Motion Picture Producers & Distributors of America, and Carl E. Milliken, general secretary of the same organization, have been dropped from the board of directors of the Church and Drama Association, the Rev. George Reid Andrews, executive secretary, announced today.

"It was deemed wise," he said, "not to have representatives of the motion picture industry on the board of directors. A committee appointed to look into the matter decided six months ago that it would be best not to re-elect Mr. Hays and Mr. Milliken to the board."

The Church and Drama Association was formed last September by a merger of three organizations, the central body having been launched in 1926 by the Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America. The Rev. S. Parkes Cadman is president.

Although Mr. Andrews would not admit there were other reasons for the removal of Mr. Hays and Mr. Milliken than that given, the Herald-Tribune said it had learned from a member of the association that Mr. Hays had attempted to draw the Church and Drama Association into a film propaganda scheme by sending out publicity and propaganda material from his own office on the association's letterheads.

MANLEY INSURANCE SUIT TO BE A IRED IN COURT TUESDAY

Intricate legal questions in connection with the attempt of the government to seize approximately $2,000 in insurance premiums due W. D. Manley, convicted head of the defunct Bankers Trust Company, and the counter attempt of Manley attorneys to secure this sum for expenses incurred by them during his recent trial, will be aired before United States Judge Samuel H. Sibley in federal court here Tuesday, it was announced Friday.

Returned by the insurance company when they refused to pay the face value of the policies on the grounds of fraud, the money was immediately claimed by the government in payment on the fine of $10,000 which was imposed on Manley at the time of his sentence. The claim filed by the firm of Little, Powell, Smith & Goldstein for Walter T. Colquitt and Ben J. Conyers, maintains that they are entitled to the funds.

Pictures of these girls will compose the feature section of the Vesper, the college annual.

INSURANCE POLICY DEATHS INCREASED

End of Year To Find 49,000
More Died Than
in 1928.

NEW YORK, Dec. 13.—(P)—The mortality among life insurance policy holders in the United States indicates that 49,000 more persons will have died this year than in 1928, Dr. Henry W. Cook, vice president and medical director of the Northwestern National Life Insurance Company told the convention of life insurance presidents today. The natural increase in population accounts for only 15,000 of the number, he said.

Dr. Cook's statement was based upon mortality records of 52 leading life insurance companies for the first 10 months of 1929.

"It appears," said Dr. Cook, "that the death rate among policy holders increased from 822.0 per 100,000 in 1928 to 840.7 in 1929. This means that there will be 18.7 more deaths among each 100,000 insured persons this year than last year, an increase of 2.3 per cent."

"The increase in deaths from influenza alone more than accounts for the year's increase in the general death rate. The death rate from this disease rose from 17.4 per 100,000 in 1928 to 37.0 in 1929, an increase of 19.6 deaths as against the increase in the death rate from all causes of 18.7."

"The homicide rate remains stationary, while there is an increase in the suicide rate from 13.1 to 13.4 per 100,000."

"The reduction in the death rate from tuberculosis especially continues its brilliant record. People are learning not only the means of protection against it, but also the importance of its early diagnosis and treatment. Tuberculosis will claim 3.4 fewer persons per 100,000 in 1929 than it did in 1928. The once feared typhoid fever has been almost eliminated. . . .

"The mortality figures in children's diseases gives evidence of the success of the fight waged against them. In 1929 only two—whooping cough and meningitis—of the six diseases most prevalent in childhood show increased death rates. Three—measles, diphtheria and diarrhea—show decreases. The rate from scarlet fever remains stationary."

"Least we become too complacent over our gain in the control of communicable diseases, let us remember that there are still 95,000 deaths a year from tuberculosis, that 15,000 children still die of measles, scarlet fever and diphtheria, and 25,000 infants from summer diarrhea. . . .

"A glance at this year's mortality experience shows another adverse and serious factor which can be adequately met only by the awakened interest of every citizen. The aggregate death toll from the automobile has been steadily and alarmingly increasing during the past decade to reach the maximum rate of 30.5 per 100,000 policy holders in 1929, an increase of 15.8 per cent over 1928, when the rate was 17.7. No matter how efficient regulation may be, the control of automobile accidents is a final analysis is dependent upon the care and judgment of drivers and pedestrians."

HEAD OF BANKERS SEES NO PANACEA IN "EASY MONEY"

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Dec. 13.—(P)—John G. Lonsdale, of St. Louis, president of the American Bankers' Association, in a statement which the Yale Daily News is publishing tomorrow, expresses "a word of caution" on "too much expectancy of cheap money."

He also asserts that the recent conferences called by President Hoover have proved beneficial, and that the nation, "facing facts and discount unfounded rumors," is apparently "setting to work with increasing energy and optimism."

"Easy credit, whether short or long term," says the statement, "is not in itself a solution to all difficulties. Easy credit wisely used is always a help, but easy credit, governmental or private, unwisely used will be a hindrance and not a constructive force."

"Our financial agencies, fully supporting all efforts in the direction of stabilization and expansion of business, appear resolved to resist unwisdom and to maintain a longer term money or credit through them will be available for any but well-planned and reasonably conservative business ventures."

SECOND ATTEMPT PROVES FAILURE FOR ROCKET BOAT

MIAMI, Fla., Dec. 13.—(P)—Malcolm Campbell's second attempt to speed across Bay Biscayne in a rocket-propelled boat went awry today. Pope, from Winter Haven, Fla., and holder of the American unlimited outboard racing championship, escaped injury during the attempt after a tow rope from two outboard boats had wound around his neck as 14 of the 33 rockets in his craft exploded.

Failure to propel his craft, the Dixie Torpedo, over the bay with rocket power today was similar to Pope's experience yesterday. In both instances, the rockets, which he had believed would shoot the boat at from 60 to 100 miles an hour over a 1,000-foot course, failed to send the craft more than a few feet.

Another trial will be made tomorrow, according to Pope and his brother, Richard, who is assisting him.

EDGE WARMLY GREETED ON REACHING PARIS

New Ambassador Lauded in Article Signed by Berenger.

PARIS, Dec. 13.—(P)—Ambassador Walter E. Edge, who arrived here today to take up his post, told the Associated Press tonight that the negotiation of a commercial treaty between France and the United States would be the first important question he will take up with the French government.

The new American ambassador, who received a welcome that touched and pleased him on arriving in France, seems destined to fulfill the conception the French had of him before his arrival, namely, he will probably address himself to practical problems of economic relations. Henry Berenger, former French ambassador to Washington, said in an article today that he would develop these relations along the lines of "an equitable reciprocity of interests."

Mr. Edge will make his first call on Foreign Minister Briand at 11 a. m. tomorrow and they will probably fix the date on which he is to present his credentials to President Doumergue.

The new ambassador, who succeeds the widely esteemed Myron T. Herrick, impressed the French by his tactfulness in delivering a message of greeting through the French press as soon as he had disembarked from the French liner Ile de France at Havre.

Mr. Edge has come to France as a student who wants to learn how best to promote businesslike and sensible relations with the United States. He said that one of his first projects is to visit the great French industrial centers, such as Lyons, Lille and Mar-seilles. He wants to "visit the factories" to get first-hand knowledge of the conditions and needs of French industry. In this way he hopes to be able to begin negotiations for a practical commercial agreement, which is lacking at present between France and the United States.

Tennessean Named.
WASHINGTON, Dec. 13.—(P)—President Hoover today nominated Ralph J. Totten, of Tennessee, to be minister resident to the Union of South Africa.

BRITONS PRAISED Byrd Commends Work of English Explorers.

WELLINGTON, New Zealand, Dec. 13.—(P)—Commander Richard E. Byrd, replying to congratulations from Sir Charles Ferguson, governor-general of New Zealand, paid tribute to the work of British explorers of the antarctic.

His message said that one of the results of his south pole flight had been to increase his respect for Scott, Shackleton and "the other British heroes who did so much more than anyone else in exploration and scientific work in Antarctica."

GOLIATH, GIANT ELEPHANT OF SEA, DIES IN FLORIDA

SARASOTA, Fla., Dec. 13.—(P)—Goliath, said to be the largest sea elephant in captivity, is dead and insurance companies stand to lose $250,000, it was learned today from George Schuler, representing the owners.

"We don't know what caused death," Schuler told reporters, "but he is gone now, and no mistake," he added as he watched a crew with a derrick, cable and a truck trying to drag the great mammal from the waters of his pen on St. Armand's key, in the Gulf of Mexico. Goliath's daily menu called for 250 pounds of frozen herring.

Oboy Bread Pudding: 2 cups stale Oboy Bread—1 quart milk—1½ teaspoon salt—1½ cup raisins if desired—2 eggs—1½ cup sugar—1 teaspoon vanilla. Soak bread in milk until it is very soft, then mash fine. Heat together until nearly boiling. Beat eggs until light and add sugar, salt and vanilla. When well mixed, stir this into the bread and milk, pour the whole into an earthenware baking-dish set in pan of water, and bake in slow oven (150°-155°F).

You can depend on an Oboy grocer

The grocer who handles Oboy Bread has a high standing in his community. His products are the finest and purest that he can get. His choice of the bread he sells you is proof of that.

The next time you're in his store, ask him about Oboy. He'll tell you how immaculately clean it is—how it contains only the most nutritious flour—how an exclusive system of baking gives it a tempting, teasing flavor that's new. Then buy a loaf and prove it to yourself. Serve it sliced for dinner and toasted for breakfast. The family will "eat it up."

PETERS ST. VIADUCT WIDENING IS URGED

City Engineer Urges Reconstruction of Whitehall Street Bridge.

Widening of the Peters street viaduct and reconstruction of several other bridges in the heart of Atlanta including the Whitehall street viaduct were urged Friday afternoon at the regular semi-monthly meeting of the bridge committee of city council.

George West, former president of the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce, spoke in behalf of the Peters street project, citing the fact that the viaduct is about 18 feet narrower than Peters street since the widening of that thoroughfare.

C. E. Kauffmann, city bridge engineer, requested the committee and city council to take action on proposed reconstruction of the Whitehall street bridge. Many other city bridges are in bad condition and should be replaced, according to city engineers.

Pointing out the fact that many thousands of vehicles utilize Peters street as one of the most important thoroughfares in the city and that the bridge causes undue congestion because of its inability to expeditiously handle the traffic fed to it by the improved street, Mr. West urged immediate action to remedy the defect.

Mr. Kauffmann was instructed to communicate with Southern and Central of Georgia railway officials with a view of obtaining permission for construction of footings in the track area in the event it is widened.

A new bridge is needed, Mr. Kauffmann pointed out, because it was erected about 25 years ago and already has served its usefulness. It is estimated that it will cost about $100,000 to rebuild the viaduct.

Other routine matters also were considered by the bridge committee.

NEW TAX CASE GOES TO SUPREME COURT

A bill of exceptions Friday carried the attack on the constitutionality of the Boykin income tax act to the state supreme court.

Judge E. D. Thomas, of Fulton superior court, signed the bill of exceptions for the plaintiffs in the case, a group of Rome citizens and manufacturers.

Judge Thomas has granted a temporary restraining order to prevent enforcement of the statute until the case is decided by the state supreme court. It is expected that the case will be argued in supreme court during the January term.

SEVEN EX-MARINES ENLIST IN ATLANTA FOR MORE SERVICE

The lure of "esprit de corps" was revealed Friday at the local recruiting station of the United States Marine Corps, at 79 1/2 Forsyth street, when a tally of enlistments for the week showed seven Atlanta ex-marines who signed to reenter the service, according to George E. Monson, officer in charge. The names and addresses of the re-enlisted men are Clyde M. Caldwell, 319 Courtland street; Roy H. Collins, 369 Moreland avenue; Frank E. Deyhle, 300 Rawson street; Charles S. Marton, 505 McAfee street; Edmund F. Allen, Rex hotel; John H. Eberhardt, 417 Grant street; and Kell H. Hamill, 837 Ponce de Leon avenue.

Streets Committee.

Only routine matters were considered Friday afternoon at the regular semi-monthly meeting of the streets committee of city council. Councilman Charles L. Chosewood, of the third ward, chairman, presided.

HE WAS LIFELESS AND DESPONDENT

But ALL-BRAN made him wide-awake and well—doctor prescribed it.

CONSTIPATION ruins hopes, saps strength. Yet thousands of sufferers have found the way to relieve and prevent this disease. Read how this man rid his system of constipation.

"During the three years before ALL-BRAN cured me, I experienced more embarrassing moments than I care to tell of. Being lifeless, dull, laggard and despondent, I could not keep my job. My friends didn't want my company and I was tired of being asked 'What in the world is the matter with you?'"

"After spending much money for treatment, I finally found a doctor who advised me to eat ALL-BRAN three times a day. I did this for three months and I didn't need to be told that I looked better. I felt better and acted better. I am still using ALL-BRAN every morning and have no trouble now whatsoever." (Name and address upon request.)

Guard against constipation by eating Kellogg's ALL-BRAN. ALL-BRAN is guaranteed to prevent it—to relieve it. Just eat two table-spoonfuls daily—chronic cases, with every meal. Far better than habit-forming drugs and pills.

ALL-BRAN is 100% effective. Doctors recommend it because it promotes natural elimination. Serve it with milk or cream. Use it in cooking—muffins, bread, etc. Delicious recipes on the package. Grocers sell it. Restaurants, hotels, dining-cars service it. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

WET HOUSE MEMBERS DISAGREE ON METHODS

Linthicum, Democrat, Refuses To Attend LaGuardia Meeting.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 13.—(United Press.)—A potential split in the anti-prohibition ranks of the house developed today.

Several democrats, including Chairman Linthicum, Maryland, of the unofficial committee on modification of the Volstead law, refused to attend a meeting of wets called for tomorrow by three republicans, LaGuardia, of New York; Schaffer, of Wisconsin, and Englebright, of California.

"I believe we can accomplish more in proceeding according to our course than we can splitting up in different blocs," Linthicum said in a letter addressed to the three republicans.

"In union there is strength. Your views as to the formation of a separate bloc may be correct but I do not believe so. If you desire a more militant membership than we have already had, it might be well to create a committee for that purpose within our organization."

Linthicum asked the republicans to postpone their meeting until the full committee has an opportunity to assemble after the holiday recess but LaGuardia indicated his group would go ahead with its plans for a meeting tomorrow to discuss a program for the session.

Financiers Here Today on Dairy Survey of State

Eastern and midwestern bankers, representing more than $2,000,000,000 in invested capital, will arrive in Atlanta this morning as the guests of the Citizens & Southern, and the First National banks, for the purpose of making a survey of the state prior to completing plans for the furtherance of dairying in Georgia.

While here they will be at the Biltmore hotel and they are making the survey of Georgia prior to completing plans established by J. C. Penney, founder of the J. C. Penney Co., and nationally known chain store merchant, who is chairman of the board of Foremost Dairy Products, Inc.

Following an exhibition of the famous Penney herd of purebred Guernsey cattle here this fall, Mr. Penney made a trip through the south in the interests of the Foremost organization, during which time he announced that there was a dairy potential of $300,000,000 as yet undeveloped in the southern territory. At that time he stated that the objectives of the Foremost group would be to furnish outlets for milk production and to establish model dairy plants throughout the territory covered by the organization.

Three weeks ago it was announced that the Foremost group had acquired the properties of the Southwest Dairy Products Co., operating with extensive properties in Texas, Louisiana, Arkansas and Mississippi, through this merger the organization which is headed by Mr. Penney becomes the third largest dairy group in America, and the largest in the south. Combined sales of the two companies for six months ending September 30 were in excess of $6,400,000 and profits were $784,000.

In a statement to The Constitution Friday Burdette G. Lewis, president of the Foremost Dairy Products organization, said: "A great part of the activities of the company will be devoted to the manufacture of milk products such as powdered and evaporated milk, butter, cheese and other products that can be used in serving a national market."

The interest taken by large banking groups in the project is shown by the fact that the party which will arrive today will include representatives from the following concerns: Mellon National bank, of Pittsburgh; Harris Bank & Trust Company, of Chicago; George M. Borman & Company, of New York and Chicago; Fenner & Beane, of St. Louis and New York; Gonder & Kelly, of New York; More, Leonard & Lynch, of New York, and others of national standing.

During their visit here the banking group will not only survey Foremost properties but also will visit other industries in the city.

Child Welfare Work Discussed By Mill Leaders

Special emphasis was given the welfare of children in Georgia industrial communities, in relation to living conditions, health and education, at the second annual industrial relations conference of the Georgia Cotton Manufacturers' Association at the Biltmore hotel Friday.

Executives, welfare workers and medical attaches of various textile enterprises made up the gathering of about 200 delegates. The meeting was opened by invocation and introductory remarks by C. J. Swift, of Columbus, president of the organization. The chair was then taken over by C. W. Coleman, of LaGrange.

The principal address of the morning session was made by Dr. Louis D. Newton, pastor of the Druid Hills Baptist church, who briefly reviewed the transitions that have taken place in the south during the past 25 years and discussed the duty of civilization to the children of industrial centers.

"Civilization has ever had to answer the question, 'Have I done my best for the child?'" he said. "And many civilizations have had to admit defeat when adjudged at the high tribunal of the child's rightful sphere. War, avarice, disease, ignorance, prejudice, and superstition have cheated childhood by permission of civilization, and civilization has paid a terrific penalty."

Following the address a round table discussion devoted to the health work in the state's textile communities was conducted under the leadership of Dr. E. H. Oppenheimer, dean of the medical school of Emory University. Luncheon was served at the hotel.

The discussion was divided into two phases, what has been done in the past and what can be done in the future to improve conditions. Social service workers and other representatives were called upon by Dr. Oppenheimer to outline the situations in their respective territories with regard to the supply of good water and food, physical examinations, preventive measures in disease control, establishment of clinics, and conditions promoting health and safety in the textile plants.

Problems of education in textile communities were considered during the afternoon session, with Dr. R. E.

Wager, director of the department of education at Emory University, leading the discussion.

The industrial relations committee of the association which was in charge of the conference, was as follows: F. E. Glenn, chairman, Atlanta; W. D. Anderson, Sr., Macon; Miss Katherine Dozier, New Holland; G. I. Parmenter, Carlestown; R. A. McCormick, Gainesville; C. W. Coleman, LaGrange; and H. W. Pittman, of Macon.

Department of Agriculture Asks Increased Provisions For Aviation and Forest Aid

Supply Bill Also Provides Additional Funds for Warfare on Plant Destroyers.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 13.—(AP)—Increased provisions are made for aviation weather service, improvement of national forests and for combating plant insects in the annual supply bill of the agricultural department taken under consideration today by the house.

The measure calls for an outlay of $163,255,400 for the fiscal year 1936. Reported to the house by its appropriations committee a few minutes before general debate began, it carries an increase of $8,573,900 over the 1935 appropriations and remains within budget bureau estimates by $214,610.

To provide additional aviation weather forecasts, the weather bureau was allotted $4,058,600, an increase of $555,200 over 1935, of $1,370,000 set aside for atmospheric phenomena investigations, $301,125 was designated for additional airway service.

The forest service was allowed $15,703,730, an increase of $2,579,450. The sum of $2,500,000 was set aside for improvement of the forests, while the forest fire co-operation item was increased by $300,000 to $1,700,000.

To assure an expansion of the campaign against insects, the plant control and quarantine administration was allowed $3,708,800, an increase of $1,075,300 over the present year. The sum of $1,000,000 was set aside for corn borer control; $720,000 for quarantine enforcement; $475,000 for Japanese beetle, and $497,000 for pink boll worm control.

The bureau of entomology also was given additional funds, being allowed $2,548,394 as compared with $1,962,044. Practically all of this would be spent in studies for controlling cotton, semi-tropical, forest, cereal, forage and miscellaneous insects that make the life of the farmer hard.

The bureau of plant industry would receive $5,436,786, an increase of $320,817, a large portion of which is to be used in control of grain crop diseases.

The bill allotted $75,000,000 to federal highway aid, an increase of $1,000,000 over this year, and $7,500,000 for forest roads and trails. The sum of $2,000,000 was appropriated for the Mount Vernon Memorial highway, from Washington, D. C., to Mount Vernon, Va.

TWENTY BANDITS KILLED IN BATTLE BY MEXICAN TROOPS

NOGALES, Sonora, Mexico, Dec. 13.—(AP)—A clash between a band of 200 bandits and a detachment of federal troops at Sahaguna, a village about 100 miles east of Hermosillo, capital of Sonora, in which three men, including the bandit leader, were killed and 20 prisoners executed, was reported here today.

FIVE MISSING PISTOLS FOUND IN AUBURN PEN

AUBURN, N. Y., Dec. 13.—(AP)—Search for seven missing pistols, used by convicts in Wednesday's uprising, continued today within Auburn prison on today while on the outside department was upon Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt for removal of Commissioner of Corrections Raymond P. G. Kiehl.

The National Society of Penal Information, through its board of directors in New York, sought Mr. Kiehl's removal, terming him "unfit" to carry out the governor's prison reform program.

The governor, while refusing comment upon this demand, hurried from New York towards Albany.

Within the prison walls, wracked by a bloody riot by "bad men" among the long termers, all convicts continued under strict surveillance, each being locked in his cell. Five of twelve missing pistols have been found on prison rubbish heaps. Seven still are missing despite a ransacking of each cell, and every remote corner of the grim granite structure.

Tonight the bodies of all but two dead convicts were claimed by relatives or friends. Autopsies showed all eight of the dead prisoners had died from "gunshot wounds inflicted by others," thereby halting rumors that one of the ringleaders, Stephen Pawlak, had committed suicide.

At least three more mutineers were located and placed in punishment cells to await trial before a special term of supreme court on charges of first degree murder in the killing of Principal Keeper George Durand. Governor Roosevelt has said this special term would be called shortly.

BOSTON PREPARES TO REVISE STATUTE ON BOOK BANNING

BOSTON, Dec. 13.—(AP)—Boston's book censorship problem will be brought before the state legislature next week, the Massachusetts citizens committee for the revision of the book law announced today.

A revised censorship law, designed by the committee to meet the approval of the public, the book seller and the guardians of public morals, will be introduced by Representative Henry L. Shattuck, of Boston. Under the proposed revision a book would be judged in its entirety, and not by an isolated passage or passage, as it is claimed, books have been judged and banned during recent years.

The committee sponsoring the measure is composed of men and women prominent throughout the state who have conducted a year's study of the book censorship question. They expressed the hope that the proposed revision of the law would solve the distressing situation which has brought the ridicule of the entire civilized world upon the city of Boston.

Heavy penalty—not more than two years' imprisonment and fine of $100 to $1,000—is provided by the proposed law for a person convicted of printing, publishing or distributing obscene matter.

DEFENSE CLAIMS CROWD STARTED FATAL RIOTING

BURNSVILLE, N. C., Dec. 13.—(AP)—Strikers in the battle at the mill of the Marion Manufacturing Company, October 2, were described as a "yellow, cursing crowd," ready to "shoot it out" with sheriff's forces as the defense opened testimony today in the trial of eight deputies charged with the killing of six workers killed during the disorder.

W. S. Jones, master mechanic of the Marion Manufacturing Company, where the battle occurred following a strike of employees in the mill, testified today that the first shots in the disturbance came from the center of the crowd of strikers.

A. L. Stucken, managing editor of the Greensboro Daily News, was the first defense witness. He said he went to Marion late on the day of the shooting and saw holes in the windows of the mill and bullet marks on the walls. State witnesses had testified that shots were fired only from the sheriff's forces in the mill gate in front of the building.

THE WAFFLE A NEW DELIGHT

AMERICAN FOOD COMPARED TO THAT OF ENGLAND

To Visiting British Journalist

(Alfred Perry, of London, cable editor of Reuters, great European news gathering agency, is the holder of the 1930 award of the Walter Hines Page Fellowship, which each year sends to America a young British journalist to work on outstanding American newspapers. Mr. Perry was assigned to The Constitution as his observation point for studying conditions in the south-east. Two years ago Thomas Cadet was assigned on the same fellowship to The Constitution.)

BY ALFRED P. PERRY.

Waffles! The word that spells America to every greedy Briton. The very name is luscious. It suggests the well-stuffed mouth striving vainly to articulate the details of a through treat that will not meet. It is what professors, lacking longer words, would call onomatopoeic, suggesting action by the sound alone. Waffle! Almost one can feel the buttered morsel melting in a flood of syrup on the tongue.

Small wonder that this is an irresistible temptation to the foreign glutton. And there are many others. There is popcorn, snow-white airy masses which boasts the happy eater for a nickel. The mystic process of its manufacture fascinates me as a conjuring trick. It is a never-failing wonder to watch the white-coated magician toss a handful of the grain into the spinning drum and watch it twirl with the olympian air of a superior being. A minute passes, the popcorn is out, pours a sackful of popcorn. It reminds one of those Chinese jugglers who swallow a postage stamp and then produce a mile of colored paper from their mouths.

Other New World "Delicacies."

Again, there is corn on the cob, in eating which it is permissible to satisfy the primitive desire of man to get his ears into his food. And there are hamburgers and hot dogs, those ever-ready saviors of the famished newspaper reporter. We have hot dogs in London, too, but I avoid them there, for I suspect the "dog" lurks not in the name alone. Mustard, like mercy, covers a multitude of sins!

Another culinary triumph to which the Briton must take off his hat is the American sandwich. Noble three-decker with introduced names, how will I miss you as I munch the greasy ham or stringy beef atrocities which belated Londoners must be content to eat. The pioneer who brings the "Club House" to our shores will surely make a fortune in this life and be honored with a full-length statue by a grateful public when he does.

His first meal in this country makes the Briton realize that he is in a foreign land. At breakfast grapefruit or orange juice replaces his customary porridge and coffee takes the place of Indian tea. Lunch and dinner, too, are unfamiliar, for he finds fruit salad served with the soup instead of at the end. And he discovers that the pies and puddings which he knows as "the sweets" at home are here classed as dessert, a course confined in Britain to the fruits and fancy candies served at the finish of the meal. The salads and the vegetables in particular he finds mostly better than at home. For there is truth in the complaint of an American ambassador to the Court of St. James who wailed, "The English have three vegetables—and two of them are cabbage!" The full horror of his suffering will be realized when he finds that the most common method of cooking cabbage is to boil it till the caterpillars die. Thus purged of foreign bodies, it is taken to the table as a dripping mess of much the same consistency and taste as sodden packing paper.

Tribute to "Eateasy."

But any consideration of the gastronomic art as practiced in this country would be incomplete without a tribute to that great American institution, the "eateasy." It is a priceless gift to the busy man, with its quick service and good, wholesome cooking. The man who sets up such establishments in the old "city" should reap a rich reward and earn the blessings of innumerable clerks who now must waste their scanty time in stuffy eating-houses hoping that they may be served before their luncheon hour is through.

Yet there are some things which we could show them over here. Who can rival our bacon, our broad juicy strips so delicate and thin that the pattern of the plate shows through? And our ham, blushing and tender as a maiden's cheek.

Then there is our tea, mahogany nectar which no true Briton would willingly forego even at the crisis of a willfully match. Justly are its joys withheld from a people whose first act of national independence was to throw good tea into the sea, an act as barbarous as that of their descendants who pour choice wines into the gutter.

Sacred Rites Scored.

Americans infusing tea must make the angels weep. At every turn the sacred rites are scorned. No heated pot receives the magic leaves, one spoonful for each drinker and one more for luck. No hush of Jan. 1st watches for the first soft gurgle of the steaming kettle to add the water at the proper moment. And no five minutes of silent devotion before the steaming brew is poured into the well-warmed cup. Small wonder the Americans drink coffee!

And last of all, there is our beef. What joint in all the world can be compared to it? Dark crackling skin without, concealing fleecy fat which melts like magic. Justly are its joys withheld from a people whose first act of national independence was to throw good tea into the sea, an act as barbarous as that of their descendants who pour choice wines into the gutter.

"It's the roast beef of Old England That makes us what we are today!"

EX-SENATOR REED IS FACING CONTEMPT

KANSAS CITY, Kan., Dec. 13.—(AP)—Contempt of court citations, growing out of the legal tangle in which the Federal Reserve Life Insurance Company has become involved, today faced former Senator James A. Reed and six of his legal associates.

The seven were cited yesterday by District Judge W. H. McCamish for interference with a court order. The alleged offense consisted of obtaining a restraining order in federal court enjoining temporary receivers for the $10,000,000 insurance firm, appointed by Judge McCamish, from performing their duties in that capacity.

Reed, with Fred J. Robertson, former United States district attorney for Kansas; Joseph H. Brady, Kansas City; E. H. Henning, Chicago; and Massey Holmes and James T. Taylor, Kansas City, associated with the former senator, and E. R. Sloan, Holbrook, Kan., were ordered to appear Monday morning in district court to show cause why they should not be punished.

They acted at the request of the Fire Insurance Company of Chicago, majority stockholders in the Kansas City company. The order was signed by Federal Judge John C. Pollock.

The application ordering the seven attorneys to appear charged that they had induced and persuaded Judge Pollock to sign the restraining document and for that reason are in direct contempt of court for holding Judge McCamish's orders "in light esteem and defying his authority."

The application was signed by T. F. Ralback and H. S. Roberts, attorneys for intervening stockholders, who applied for the restraining order, and Fred S. White, Wyandotte county attorney, who filed the original petition asking that the company be placed in the hands of a temporary receiver on the grounds that officials of the company had defrauded the firm of more than $1,000,000.

Senator Reed was in Texas on a hunting trip today, but was expected to return Sunday.

TIMBER ON LAND NEAR BRUNSWICK SOLD FOR $270,000

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Dec. 13.—(AP)—Sale of a 40,000-acre tract in central Florida and turpentine and timber rights on an extensive tract in southern Georgia, was announced here today by the James D. Lacey Company, which negotiated the transactions.

A 40,000-acre tract located in Levy county was sold by the Florida Lumber Mills, Inc., to the Forestry Associates, Inc., a syndicate composed of Jacksonville and north Florida businessmen. Consideration was not announced.

J. A. Reid, of Jacksonville, has purchased 43,000,000 feet of pine and oak timber from a 28,000-acre tract owned by the Gilman-Chapley Company, of Brunswick, Ga. The consideration was reported as $270,000.

Purchase of piling timber on the same tract was made by George W. Brandon, of St. Marys and Brunswick, with the consideration reaching $100,000 over a period of three years.

The James D. Lacey Company has been rated the Forestry Associates, Inc., as manager of the Levy county tract. A number of turpentine, cross tie and timber leases have already been negotiated, company officials said.

NORRIS ATTACKS JULIUS BARNES "LUXURY" PROGRAM

WASHINGTON, Dec. 13.—(AP)—The program of Julius Barnes, chairman of President Hoover's business advisory committee, for two automobiles and two telephones in American homes was criticized in the senate today by Senator Norris, republican, Nebraska, as one tending toward luxury purchases.

The Nebraska contended that instead of this program Barnes should be advising the public that it should not go in debt for luxuries and that nothing should be purchased on credit unless it was needed in business as a necessity.

VET AID SOUGHT $13,700,000 Hospitalization Bill Ordered Reported.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 13.—(AP)—A move to increase facilities for relief of disabled World War veterans was made today by the house World War veterans' committee in ordering a $13,700,000 hospitalization bill reported.

The group instructed Chairman Royal C. Johnson, of the committee, to put the bill before the house so that it might be brought up for early action.

Decatur Courthouse Square To Blaze With Holiday Cheer

Camp Fire Girls Will Light Two Living Trees

BY BEN COOPER.

Courthouse square in Decatur will be a blaze of glory this Christmas through efforts of the Campfire Girls of the DeKalb county seat.

Funds to light two living Christmas trees planted two years ago by the Campfire Girls have been raised by the Decatur camp, and the two trees, now grown to handsome specimens of tresshood, will brighten the landscape in Decatur this yuletide season.

A new living Christmas tree will be planted in the courthouse square at 2:30 o'clock on Tuesday afternoon, December 17, with Mrs. E. L. Gardner, chairman of the civic division of the Decatur Woman's Club, in charge.

Mayor Scott Candler, John Wesley Weeks, president of the Decatur Chamber of Commerce, the Decatur Campfire Girls, and Mrs. R. I. Weeks, chairman of the music committee of the Decatur Woman's Club, will participate in the program.

Hope that Ansel Park will surpass itself this year in lighting the living Christmas trees was expressed Friday by Mrs. William McAloney, of 21 Maddox drive. Mrs. McAloney pointed out that this will be Ansel Park's third year of lighting the living trees.

Campfire Girls are now calling on homeowners in all sections of Atlanta and environs in the campaign to enlist citizens in the movement to light living Christmas trees. The Campfire Girls securing the largest number of trees will be treated to a theater party at the close of the campaign.

GREAT LINERS SAIL AS 'TREASURE SHIPS' CARRYING $21,000,000

NEW YORK, Dec. 13.—(AP)—The National City bank has arranged to send $10,000,000 in gold to London on the liner Berengaria, sailing tonight. It was learned today. This is in addition to the $11,000,000 which the Irving Trust Company is sending on the Bremen tomorrow night, as reported yesterday.

The National City shipment is understood to include the $7,500,000 commitment rumored yesterday, so that the total so far negotiated on the present movement is believed to be $21,000,000.

WOMEN PROMINENT IN BRITISH AFFAIRS ENGAGE IN DISPUTE

LONDON, Dec. 13.—(AP)—A poignant controversy has arisen between two of England's most prominent women, Lady Houston, widow of the ship owner from whom she inherited 6,000,000 pounds, and Miss Margaret Bondfield, minister of labor, the first British woman cabinet minister.

The controversy is over the dismissal of 175 tramway workers in Hull by the laborite city council there for having continued working during the general strike of 1926.

Miss Bondfield has taken the position that she is unable to intervene in the council's decision. Lady Houston, declaring that Miss Bondfield "pretends to be a friend of the laboring classes," describes this attitude as unwomanly. Meanwhile Lady Houston is paying the wages of all the dismissed men until over the new year.

Appointment of Grundy To Senate Meets Wishes Of People of Pennsylvania

Prediction Is Made That Senator Will Easily Win in Next Election for Post.

BY MARK SULLIVAN.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 13.—It is a justifiable reflection of Pennsylvania sentiment to say that the appointment of Joseph Grundy to the senate reflects the wishes of that state in the highest degree. The prediction is made that in the primary and election next year Mr. Grundy will be returned by a vote that will show impressive confidence in him, and strong resentment to the manner of the attack made on him and on his state.

The prediction is also made that Mr. Grundy, by the force and other personality, will make a strikingly good senator and a large and concrete addition to the intellectual strength of the senate. Newspaper readers outside Pennsylvania may have been led to confuse Grundy and Vane, or to think of them as of the same type. This would be a mistake. Vane is a city boss who spent his active life in politics and office holding. Grundy is a manufacturer who has never held office.

The immediate favor Mr. Grundy enjoys in Pennsylvania arises from the feeling that the coalition senators tried to bully him, that he fought back, and that he won the contest and will continue to win it. As it was put at the time by an admiring democrat, "every time the coalition senators tried to bite Grundy, they broke a tooth."

This feeling, incidentally, that the coalition senators "over reached" themselves during their attack on Grundy exists in important circles outside Pennsylvania.

High Standing.

The more permanent esteem for Mr. Grundy in Pennsylvania arises from the standing of himself, his high personal character, his family line, and his manner of conducting the textile industry that has been in his family for generations. If the country has been led to assume, by fragmentary accounts of recent events, that Grundy is a lobbyist in the ordinary sense, that is a mistake. He is as far as possible from the type of professional "rainmaker" who lobbies for a fee. He lobbied for an industry of which he is the owner. Aside from that he lobbied in the interest of the Pennsylvania Manufacturers' Association. Much is made of the fact that Mr. Grundy collected a campaign fund of $700,000 from members of this association for the campaign last year. As Pennsylvania sees it, the Pennsylvania Manufacturers' Association has some 7,000 members. An average contribution of a hundred dollars each by them is no more in proportion than the membership fees paid by farmers to many farm organizations for promoting legislation in their interest.

Finally, Mr. Grundy is looked upon as having striven in the interest of the workers in Pennsylvania industries. Those who know Mr. Grundy feel that his political efforts are less in the interest of his own wealth, which is inherited and ample, than in the interest of the employees who work for him, and for manufacturers associated with him. Several Pennsylvania industries, including textiles, some parts of the steel business, and coal, are in a distressed and acute state of the farmers. Some of these industries are even more dependent on the tariff for prosperity than the farmers of Pennsylvania.

Pennsylvania has come to feel, in the later stages of the tariff discussion, and in the senate coalition attitude toward Mr. Grundy, that their state is being "kicked around" by the senate like Champ Clark's hound dog. Mr. Grundy and the interests he represents are perfectly willing to let the farmers have what tariff they think they need. The late development in which the farm senators try to deny any tariff increases to industry have caused resentment. Thus sectionalism started from one section, grows by what it feeds upon, and arises in other sections.

Mr. Grundy, in his personality, his abstemious uprightness, and his background, reflects qualities and conditions in which Pennsylvania takes pride. He is a descendant of settlers who came over with William Penn. He is a quaker, a graduate of a quaker college, Swarthmore, and he runs his business in a quaker way.

Plenty of Courage. An essential element in the esteem for Mr. Grundy is his courage, both his personal courage and his courage of conviction. He believes in the protective tariff as earnestly as any farm senator believes in farm relief, and more than some. His tariff activities are to him and to the people of Pennsylvania a case of strongly-held principle advocated in a courageous way.

The opposition to Mr. Grundy in the senate has not been impressive. It has come from some of the coalition senators. Senator Nye, of North Dakota, put it on the rather remote ground that Mr. Grundy was appointed by Governor Fisher and that Governor Fisher, in his own election, was the beneficiary of a campaign fund which the North Dakota senator regards as dubious. This attitude would assert the right of the senate to inquire into the election of the governor of any state. The attitude has been regarded from the beginning as fantastic.

What will be the immediate effect of Mr. Grundy's presence in the senate on the pending tariff controversy remains to be seen. His personal tariff views are rather extreme. He doubts, for example, whether there should be any flexible tariff provision whatever. He thinks a general tariff should be written by congress, and that it should remain stable and unchanged for several years until another general revision is called for. The number of republican senators who are as extreme on tariff as Mr. Grundy is quite small. All that can be said at the present is that Mr. Grundy will be the courageous spokesman of a definite point of view which he is able to express and argue for with a high quality of intellectual substance.

Al Smith Receives Ovation On Visit to Washington, D. C.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 13.—(P)—

Alfred E. Smith had a relaxing time in the capital today both before and after a conference with Secretary Adams on the advisability of placing a dirigible mast on the 85-story Empire State building going up in his home town.

He arrived in Washington from New York before dawn and left as the day was fading, chuckling over many incidents reminiscent of the exciting presidential campaign last year. Going to and from the office of the secretary of the navy, he was besieged by cheering government workers normally at their desks at the time.

He did not see President Hoover, explaining that he had not been invited, and that he didn't like to interrupt busy people even for 15 minutes.

The former governor and democratic party leader, visiting here for the third time in his life, was on business bent, and he refused to permit his life-long vocation—politics—to intrude.

No Politics.

"I am interested in constructing buildings and landing airplanes now," he said in response to political questions. His only reference to his political past or future was in a comparison of the milling throng that greeted him at the navy department with other crowds that stormed about him on his swing from the Atlantic coast to the Rocky Mountains last year in quest of the presidency.

It was an unplanned but highly successful demonstration that greeted the former governor. He was forced to walk several blocks along the bridge paths of Potomac Park after his taxi driver put him out at the wrong place. So he arrived late. But virtually the entire personnel of the navy department waited patiently and as he stepped into the corridors of the building the familiar "Hello, Al," was heard on every side, and "Al" responded with a wave of the equally familiar brown derby and his broadest smile.

The crowd—mostly women—closed about him cheering, grasping at his hand, and shoving. Guards were necessary to force a way through to the secretary's office. As he left, the demonstration was renewed, and this time the former governor stopped to shake hands with many about him.

"I am glad to see I have so many friends in the navy department," he told them.

Poses for Pictures. Before leaving, however, he posed with Secretary Adams and Rear Admiral Moffett, chief of navy aeronautics, for pictures, joking most of the time.

Smith said he merely wished to establish the contact with the navy, as they are the only people in the country who know about such masts, and engineers of his company—which is building the towering structure on the site of the old Waldorf-Astoria hotel in New York—will go further into the question with engineers of the navy to determine the feasibility of the plan.

The mast would stand 300 feet above the 85-story building and would cost more than $300,000. Smith estimated tentatively, but he said they were prepared to go through with the project both as a means of strengthening national defense and to encourage lighter-than-air development commercially, if the navy approved.

The former governor was assured by Secretary Adams, who was almost late to a cabinet meeting because of Smith's inadvertent tardiness, that the navy had no objection to having him call and desired to be helpful.

Politics remained taboo throughout the day for the presidential candidate turned businessman, and he declined all invitations to visit about the city. Suggestions that he visit the senate, call at the White House, and visit headquarters of the democratic national committee all were rejected.

Going to the office of Senator Wagner, democrat, New York, accompanied by W. W. Kenny, his wealthy New York personal and political friend, in whose private car he made the trip, he chatted for more than an hour with the senator, Joseph Shouse, chairman of the executive committee of the democratic national committee, and newspapermen, before returning to his car for the trip home.

Senator Robinson, democrat, Arkansas, his running mate on the democratic ticket last year; Mrs. Nellie Taylor Ross, former governor of Wyoming and head of the women's bureau of the democratic national committee, and Senator Copeland, democrat, New York, called to say their respects.

Another Cloudy Unsettled Day Is Seen for City

There just doesn't seem to be any way of causing any radical change in prevailing weather conditions, according to C. F. von Herrmann, local meteorologist, who stated Friday that more of the same would be on tap here today.

"Continued cloudy, unsettled weather, with slight chance for misting rain, and rising temperatures," is the official forecast.

Friday's temperature range was from a minimum of 44 up to 50 at noon with a maximum just above this figure. Today's extremes will be approximately 50 and 60, Mr. von Herrmann thinks.

FRACTURED SKULL RECEIVED BY BOY IN FALL OF TREE

While working in the woods near a sawmill on Cascade road, where he was employed, Dorris Scoggins, 16, of Route 1 received a fracture of his skull late Friday afternoon, when struck down by a large limb of a tree, which he and his father, S. E. Scoggins, had sawed down.

Mr. Scoggins, who with Clark Garner, operator of the mill, brought the boy to Grady hospital, said that the trunk of the tree cleared them both as it fell, but a large limb broken by the crash, bounded towards his son, striking him on the head. His condition was said to be critical by hospital attaches, late Friday night.

Youth Is Not Franklin, Says Friend of Connie

The youth above who says he is Connie Franklin, whom Tiller Rummel, also pictured above, asserts was her sweetheart and killed by a gang of men in the mountainous regions of the Arkansas Ozarks, is not the missing Connie Franklin he knew last spring, says Coleman Foster, an intimate friend of Franklin. This new angle further adds to the baffling mystery of the mountain section.

MOUNTAIN VIEW, Ark., Dec. 13.—(P)—The self-styled "best friend" of Connie Franklin and the "mystery man" who says he is Franklin, held a dramatic rendezvous in the hills near here today and the failure of one to identify the other left a baffling mystery unsolved.

Coleman Foster, whose decision had been eagerly awaited by Prosecuting

Attorney Hugh Williamson, examined the man closely for distinguishing features, while a group of spectators and officials waited with tense nerves for his answer. Then he asserted positively it was not the Connie Franklin he knew and whom five men are charged with murdering.

The question of whether Connie Franklin is dead or alive thus remained unanswered.

Prosecutor Williamson went ahead with his preparations for the trial of the five men next Monday on the theory Franklin was slain, and defense lawyers continued gathering evidence calculated to prove there was no murder committed on the night of last March 9 in the St. James community.

Foster's failure to identify the man as Franklin was regarded by defense lawyers as merely adding one more witness to the state's list, while they point out they will have several who will testify positively he is Franklin.

The meeting between the two men occurred at the home of Stanley Younger, near St. James. When Foster arrived with officials and a number of spectators and newspapermen, "Franklin" was in the house eating dinner.

Presently he strolled out nonchalantly. Neither of them spoke. "Franklin" seated himself on a log with Foster's eyes fixed closely on him.

"Well, Cole, who am I?" said the "mystery man," finally. Foster looked for a mole on the back of the neck and found none. He had the man pull off his right shoe and looked for a peculiarity in the position of his toes but found none. He examined his hair.

Gathered around were several relatives of the accused men and several persons who believe Franklin was slain. So tense was the atmosphere prosecuting and defense attorneys decided to have Foster withhold his decision until later.

Upon returning to Mountain View Foster announced positively it was not the "Franklin he knew."

Foster is the third person who has told officials the man is not Franklin. The others are Tiller Rummel,

Franklin's former sweetheart, and Reuben Hartell, a deaf mute youth, both of whom have said they saw Franklin mutilated and burned alive nine months ago.

An Izard county woman who reported to officials that she had a son named Connie Franklin, missing for three or four years, had not arrived here tonight to try to identify the man as her son. Her decision was not counted upon by officials to throw any material light on the case.

H. H. HUGHES HURT IN AUTO ACCIDENT, TAKEN TO GRADY

H. H. Hughes, 45, of 21 Emerald street, was rendered unconscious and received a possible fracture of the skull Friday night when he was struck by an automobile driven by J. D. Toll, who lives at the Candler hotel, Decatur. Toll carried Hughes to Grady hospital and reported the accident to police.

According to Toll, he was going east on Edgewood avenue and had stopped near North Boulevard to wait a green traffic light. Toll said he then started his machine to join the line nearer the street car tracks when Hughes brushed into his automobile. No charges were made against him.

LIFE IN PRISON AT HARD LABOR FOR FLORIDIAN

MIAMI, Fla., Dec. 13.—(P)—Sentence of life imprisonment at hard labor was imposed today upon Russell Farmer, 25, who pleaded guilty to first degree murder in connection with the killing of C. J. Corley, taxicab driver, October 10. Sentence was pronounced by Judge H. F. Atkinson in circuit court after he heard witnesses in the case in order to determine the degree of punishment.

INJURED BY AUTO, CONDITION OF GIRL CRITICAL AT GRADY

A 24-year-old girl lies upon her cot at Grady hospital and smiles bravely—she is positive she will get well—but physicians shake dubious heads, for her right leg has been amputated to halt deadly infection, and efforts at blood transfusion have failed.

She is Miss Mary Hoover, who was brought to the hospital on November 19 after an automobile had crashed across the sidewalk and crushed her between its radiator and a telephone pole on Howell Mill road.

More than 300 fellow workers at the Norris Candy Company offered blood for her when it became known that a transfusion was necessary. George English was selected to give a pint of his blood, but Friday the attempt was unsuccessful. Physicians stated they would try again.

BC Relieves Grippy Aches IN 3 MINUTES

When one of those grippy, aching colds comes on, and you want immediate pain relief, go to any drug store or soda fountain and ask for a package or dose of "B-C" (10c and 25c). Three minutes after taking, the pain begins to recede, your nerves are rested, fever reduced and comforting relief sets in.

"B-C" contains five ingredients that function together for the relief of pain (female pains included) regardless of its origin, accomplishing in a few minutes what no one drug formula can do under 1 to 3 hours. In the treatment of raging headaches, sinus pains, neuralgia or ear-ache due to colds, "B-C" is unequalled, being absolutely safe, free from opiates or habit-forming drugs, and may be taken as often as needed.

To avoid imitative substitutes, don't ask for a "headache powder," but specify and insist upon "B-C" and get the original and genuine that never fails to bring quick and comforting relief.

SYNOPSIS.
John Andrew Kellogg, heir to millions, asks Barbara Thornton to marry him. She agrees, but not very graciously. When she learns that he has just lost his job she scolds him and calls him a playboy. He calls on his attorney, David Craig, who tells him that he will never inherit the money his father left if he doesn't prove himself capable of managing his life in a sensible way. He tells him that since he has lost one job after another he will have to double five thousand dollars in thirty days or live on an income from a trust fund for the rest of his life.

INSTALLMENT VI.
A BRAVE FRONT.

John Andrew saw no reason not to ask Craig how his father would have turned $5,000 into $50,000.

"Eh? He never told me. . . . But he had the Midas touch. I wish I could tell you. However, there's no need to start counting the 30 days until you say the word."

"According to the terms of the will, I could play poker with it, so long as it becomes $10,000."

"Right. How about proof?"

"I'll ask nothin' but your word, John Andrew."

"Um. I double the money. . . . in theory, that is. What I'm wondering right now is . . . why try? If I had any sense, I'd take the five thousand, have some fun with it while it lasts, and then continue to live off the fat of the land. Just where do I lose anything even if I fall down?"

"You've already answered the question," Craig shouted. "And your mind is made up to try. Very gently and earnestly. That's true, John Andrew. I knew it was. The older man fumbled with papers on the desk as he added, 'This tip I spoke of; it's a good one. I'm putting money into it, and I never gamble. Why not try? I'll handle all of the matter for you.'

John Andrew smiled, but shook his head.

When John Andrew did speak he said, "Do you think I'm a playboy?"

"Eh? All that I said was—"

"It isn't what you said at all, sir. But am I the sort that hangs about women, and hasn't a care in the world, and—"

"John Andrew," the lawyer said, "you've got one woman now, and that should be sufficient for any man. In all frankness I'll say that I never heard of you bein' with women at all. As to the rest, you're soft. All marrow and no bone. Let a man come up with a good story and your pocketbook comes out. You've drifted, John Andrew. Now, it is my opinion and I'd so state anywhere, you've two anchors to hold you. First, a thing to do which is very, very difficult, although old Andrew . . . very difficult. And secondly, there's Barbara—"

John Andrew glanced at his watch.

"She said she was going home," he said aloud. "Ought to be there now. May I use your phone, sir?"

"It might be a bit of a shock," Craig offered. "A personal interview's always better—"

"Can't call a little talk with your prospective wife an interview?"

When Barbara had been called to the telephone John Andrew said, "It's papa. Get home in good time? Fine. What? No, I'm still at Mr. Craig's office. . . . I wanted to ask you something. . . . No, I don't ask that over the telephone; this is important. . . . of course the other's important also. . . ."

Had he meant to intimate that what they had discussed—Barbara did not mention either love or marriage, but veiled it with many phrases which John Andrew must understand—was not the most important things of all?

"Here's the point," John Andrew said, after answering vaguely, "how can a fellow make five thousand berries in thirty days? I'm not trying to be silly. I mean it. Mr. Craig's right beside me, and if you want I'll have him verify what I'm saying? Wait a minute and I'll tell you to double five thousand somehow, any way I can, or the estate gets handed to me so much a month."

She would, she informed him rapidly, draw out the necessary additional five thousand dollars tomorrow, and it could be turned over to Craig.

"I've got to make it myself," John Andrew said quietly. "I appreciate what you offer, and all that, but it's not exactly . . . well, not in accordance with the terms of the will. . . . What? . . . Yes, I'm going to be stubborn about it. . . . You don't think I'll do it?"

John Andrew, Barbara began, had no more chance of making five thousand dollars than a white-wing. . . . Kellogg listened now.

He listened a long time, and at the very end, shouted, "Yes, I do know where I am going, and how I'm going to make it."

Since John Andrew had already been figuring the second of the questions, with no success, he tried to concentrate upon the first; he looked down at the glass-protected desk, and reflected back to him saw a little splash of blue. Cornflowers. And so he said suavely, "I'm going to Hollywood, my dear, to make my fortune." He said goodby before Barbara could more than start another sentence and hung up the receiver.

"I'll have the money now," John Andrew said swiftly.

"John Andrew, calm down. You're mad. Here Barbara offers you a tip on the market—"

"I've heard of them before," John Andrew repeated. "And I never heard of one—I mean from some amateur—which ever won."

"Ha," the lawyer grinned. "Gettin' sense, John Andrew? When Kellogg grinned at him wanly, the old man said, as a statement and not a question, 'You could not take the money from her, nor from anyone else. I thought of that. I even had a scheme worked out, which would look like a real estate deal in which we'd go in jointly and each make money.'"

"If I will not take the money from her and give it to you, it's never heard of one—I mean from some amateur—which ever won."

"You're a witness to it, sir; she said it loudly enough so that you must have heard. Well . . . nice day, isn't it?"

"You've lost your girl?"

"Girls," John Andrew said, "are with us always. You can't lose them. Personally, I believe I like 'em small and dark and . . . er . . . fresh."

"You're tryin' too put a brave front on it," Craig said nervously. "But—"

"Am I?" John Andrew asked. He thought it over. He was beginning to feel very much better. "I'll have the money now, sir, and transportation to the Pacific coast. I'm taking the . . . have one of your girls call up and find the best way to catch the Overland out of Chicago. . . . The one which leaves there tomorrow. . . ."

It was this train, John Andrew recalled, that the girl—Anne—on the boarding house had mentioned over the telephone.

"Why the Pacific coast?" Craig asked when John Andrew was picking up his hat. "Just because your father made money there after he returned from the Orient? Have you any notion of what you'll do, John Andrew?"

"Thank you, fearfully. 'You're not goin' to be an actor-man, boy?' John Andrew stared at his hat, whirled it around on his forefinger and then began to laugh. "Do you think they'd pay five thousand a month for a beauty like me?"

"No," the lawyer agreed.

"Thanks! Neither do I. If you must know, sir, I had to tell Barbara something when she was trying to call my bluff."

Thinking of the five thousand, which must be paid, Craig said, still in poker terms, "And a five's pretty low, John Andrew."

"Hardly worth keeping, but I've got to get another five," John Andrew grinned. "Well, I've thrown away the queen—or she's thrown me away. . . . Well, see what happens."

"It's really a man's luck to pick up what he discards," Craig said. When the lawyer looked squarely at John Andrew he saw that the son of old Andrew Kellogg was grinning more broadly than ever and fingering the withering cornflowers in his buttonhole. "In a way," the lawyer said, not understanding, "I envy you, John Andrew. . . . in a way only."

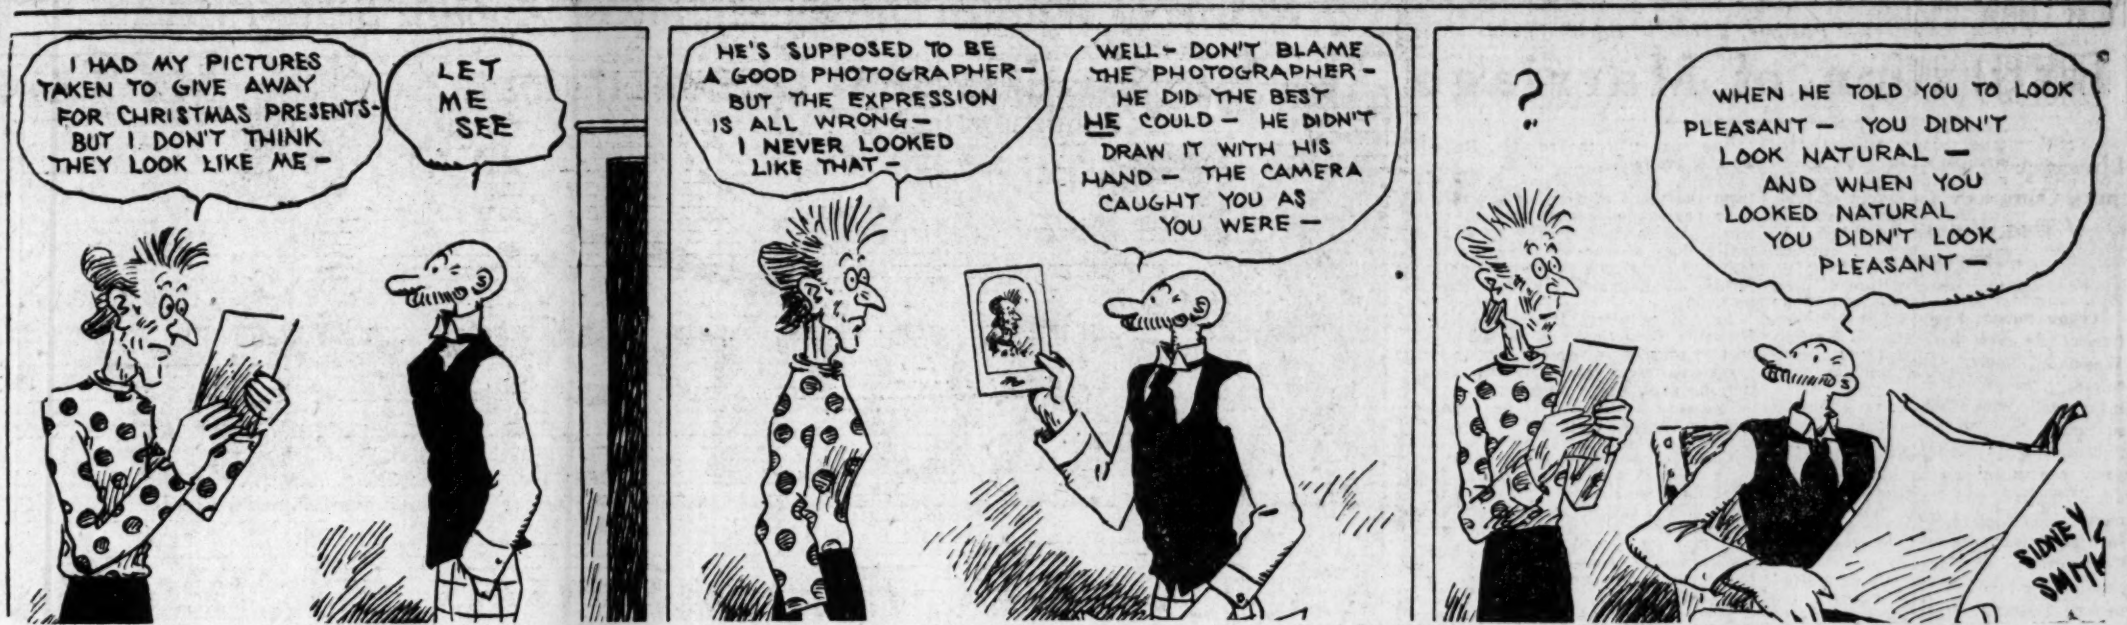

Craig stood up, went to the door and turned the key with silent caution. Then returning to his desk he unlocked a lower drawer and brought out a bottle and two glasses. "I have none of this fluff pink stuff to make it taste like ice cream soda," he said, pulling out the cork.

"The real and genuine," Craig assured him. "I've think I'd cheat the law? Hm. I'd never take a chance drinking this poison now offered illegitimately for sale. This whiskey, I have you know, comes from the cellar of a gentleman who recently found himself in the need of a bit of ready cash, and luckily I was able to purchase an even dozen bottles."

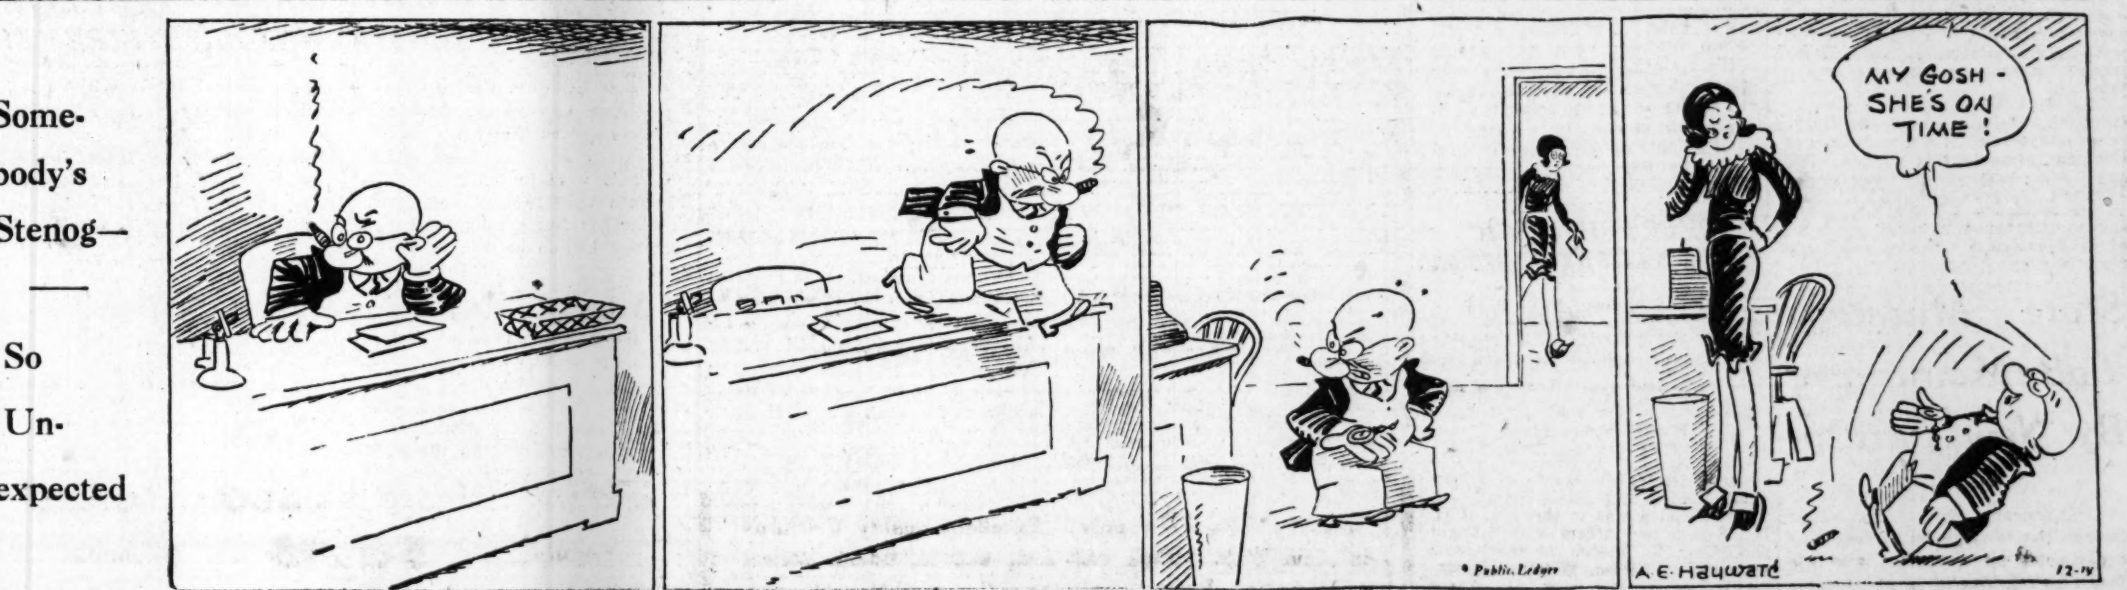

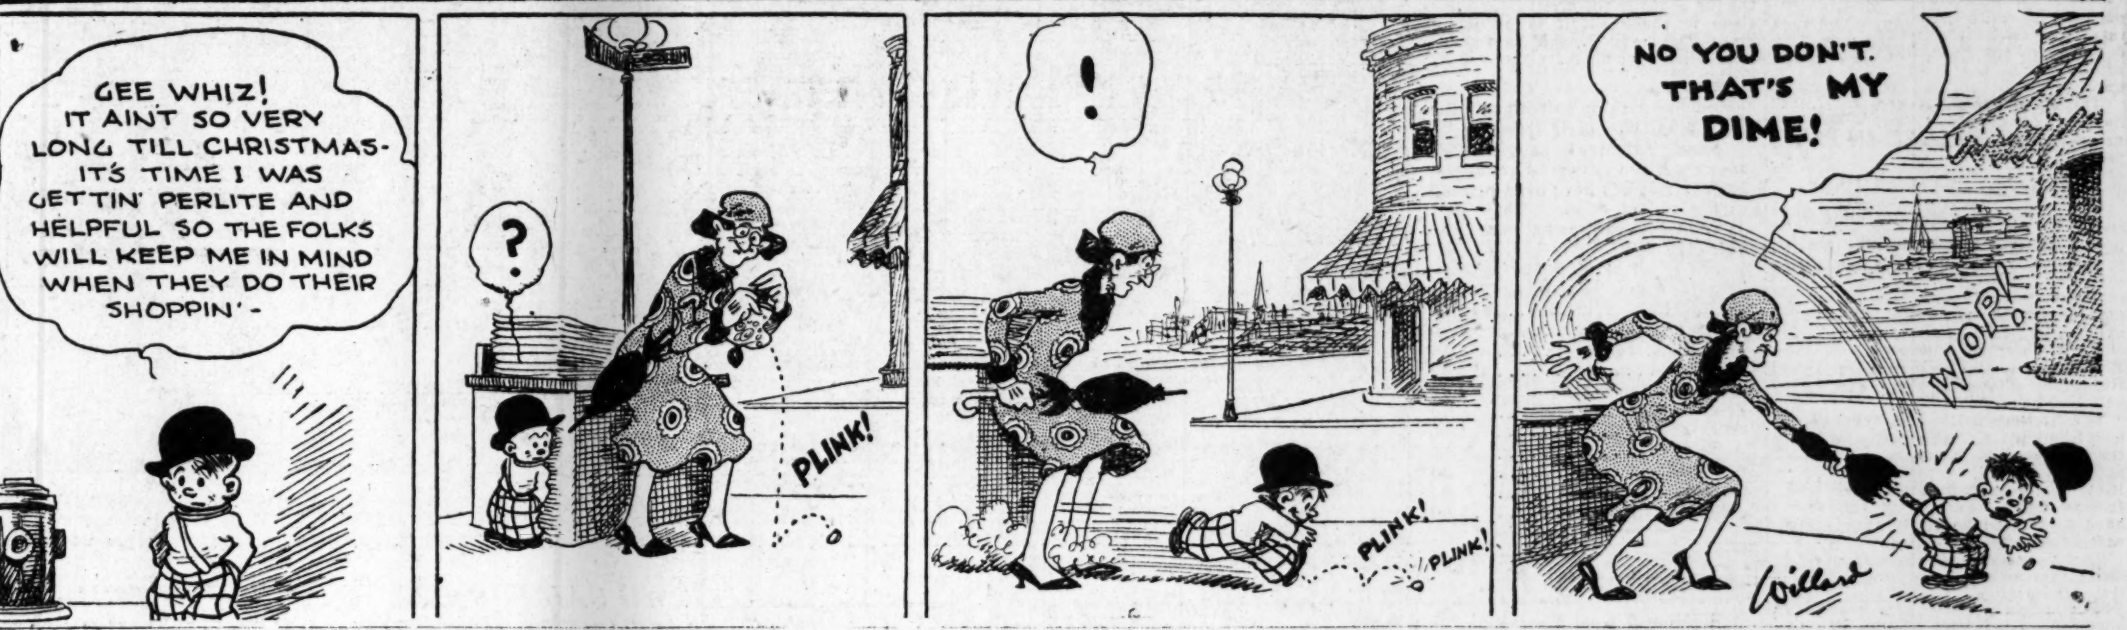

"Naturally the gentleman was reticent, but a friend of his—"

The glasses were filled, and the lawyer lifted one to his nose. "You can tell the difference," he said contentedly. "This . . . ay, this is real liquor." He lifted the glass higher. "I'll give you a toast, John Andrew. Hm. Ha. I can offer nothing better than . . . well . . . May your fortune be as good as this whiskey we're about to enjoy."

NEW LOAN, INSURANCE $20,000 DAMAGE SUIT FIRM IS FORMED HERE VERDICT IS SET ASIDE

Lipscomb-Weyman-Chapman Company Combination of Two Widely-Known Concerns.

Announcement Friday of the formation of the new firm of Lipscomb-Weyman-Chapman Company was received with interest in financial and insurance circles of Atlanta and the southeast.

Lipscomb-Weyman-Chapman Company has purchased the loan, insurance, renting and real estate business of Weyman & Connors and the insurance business of Lipscomb & Company, two of Atlanta's oldest business houses, each of which has for a period of nearly 40 years exerted an appreciable influence in the growth and development of industries and homes of this section. Weyman & Connors has long been recognized as one of the south's foremost real estate loan institutions, while Lipscomb & Co. has been representative of one of Atlanta's most successful insurance agencies.

The plan for the formation of the new company, which have been in progress for some time, were unexpectedly delayed by the sudden death of Samuel T. Weyman, president of Weyman & Connors.

The officers of the new organization will be: Rutherford Lipscomb, president; Andrew B. Chapman, vice president; George F. Weyman, secretary and treasurer; Sam M. Weyman, assistant secretary and treasurer. The board of directors will include Rutherford Lipscomb, Andrew B. Chapman, George F. Weyman, Rutherford Ellis, Joel Hurt and Samuel Nesbitt Evans.

The personnel of Lipscomb-Weyman-Chapman Company will combine the personnel of Weyman & Connors and of Lipscomb & Company, inheriting the large clientele and host of friends which the old organizations have spent many years of service and earnest effort in building up.

The operations of Lipscomb-Weyman-Chapman Company become effective immediately, with offices in the present large quarters formerly occupied by Weyman & Connors, 58 Marietta street, and at 903 Biscay building, Jacksonville, Fla., where they will handle mortgage loans, investments, insurance, rents and real estate.

The Penn Mutual Life Insurance Company, of Philadelphia, has nominated Lipscomb-Weyman-Chapman Company correspondent for its mortgage loan business in this section. The new company also will continue to act as agents for the various insurance companies formerly represented by Weyman & Connors and Lipscomb & Co.

State Museums To Be Maintained By New Curator

Arrangements have been made through the co-operation of five state departments for a curator who will devote his full time to the maintenance of, and the guidance of visitors at, the various museums at the state capital.

The plan, which is expected to be carried out shortly after the first of the year, was announced Friday by Dr. S. W. McCallie, state geologist, following a meeting of the state board of geology.

The departments of geology, agriculture, game and fisheries and forestry, all of which have exhibits at the capital, as well as the state department of education, are interested in the move. Dr. McCallie said that the heads of these departments had agreed to meet the expense of a curator.

The place of curator has not yet been awarded. Dr. McCallie said, negotiations for a suitable party are well under way. He will be a man who is thoroughly trained in museum work, he said, and who is familiar with the resources and products of Georgia which comprise the state museum.

Georgia's museum is one of the most complete of its kind in the United States," Dr. McCallie said. "It has a wide reputation throughout the United States and even abroad, where guide books for use in the United States mention it as one of the interesting things to be seen in Atlanta. The collection is worth $50,000 or more."

The state board of geology received the report of Dr. McCallie, which showed Georgia's mineral resources for the year 1928. They totaled $16,694,900, falling to that figure from $18,560,055 in 1927. Brick and tile, with $3,644,931, was the largest, with marble, $2,929,480, and granite, $2,276,252, third.

WILLIAM WARD, JR., WILL GET DEGREE IN LAW IN JUNE

William A. Ward, Jr., son of William A. Ward, 880 Springdale road, is listed as one of the 25 members of the senior class in the school of law established at Washington and Lee by General Robert E. Lee in 1866, and he will receive his diploma in June. It was announced by officials of that institution Friday.

The school of law at Washington and Lee holds membership in the Association of American Law Schools. The American Bar Association lists it as one of the 65 law schools of the country that comply with approved standards of Class A of the association as set forth in the American Bar Association Journal.

Woman Who Sought Sum for Daughter's Death To Get Another Trial.

The Georgia court of appeals Friday reversed the verdict for the defendant given by the Muscogee superior court in the suit of Mrs. Ella G. Blanchard against W. W. Ogletree for $20,000 damages for the death of her daughter, who was killed in an accident while riding in Ogletree's car.

The accident occurred at Gainesville in June, 1927. Miss Blanchard was employed by an Atlanta business firm and resided here with her mother, who claimed that she was her sole support. Ogletree was a Columbus man.

The court of appeals said that "it appears to be a disputed issue as to whether or not the defendant (Miss Blanchard) was being carried in the car at the time of the accident contrary to her expressed wish and desire," but the Muscogee judge, "on his own motion, should have charged the jury the law relative to the degree of care chargeable to the defendant in view of whichever status the jury might find defendant occupied at the time of the accident, and his failure to do so requires that the verdict and judgment be set aside."

The supreme court sustained a judgment of the state industrial commission, the Richmond county superior court and the court of appeals, ruling that Mrs. William T. McKendree should be given compensation for the death of her husband, who was circulation manager of the Augusta Herald, and who was killed when a tree was blown by a storm across his automobile. The Globe Insurance company contended that the accident was "act of God" and was non-compensable.

The court said: "Where an employee, while traveling in an automobile, is killed by a public highway in the regular course of his employment, was killed in a section of woodland through which the road passed, by a tree which stood near the road and which was blown upon him and his automobile by a sudden and violent storm, his death arose out of his employment, within the scope of the workmen's compensation act." The widow was awarded $12.75 per week for 300 weeks and $100 funeral expenses.

The supreme court ruled that the city court of Augusta was without jurisdiction in ordering the destruction of the slot machine of J. R. Barrantine. Solicitor W. L. Inman Curry had moved to have the machines destroyed, and when a demurrer questioning the jurisdiction of the court was overruled the case was carried to the supreme court.

A life sentence given Eddie Riggin, convicted of murder in Muscogee county, was affirmed by the supreme court.

The decision was in the case of H. H. Wilson and others who brought proceedings in Fulton superior court against J. C. Ham, Wilson and several other Atlanta property owners asked an injunction against the erection by Ham of an apartment house in the Highland Park subdivision.

They contended that Ham had agreed to put nothing but a single residence on the property when he purchased it, and that an apartment house is not a single residence. The supreme court ruled that a house under one roof constituted a single house, and reversed the injunction which was granted by the lower court. The decision of the Fulton superior court in the case of Mrs. Carolyn B. Apperson against Lawrence L. Apperson was also held to be error. Mrs. Apperson asked a decree of divorce, temporary alimony, attorney's fees and custody of their child. Apperson, except to the extent of the lower court on the ground that award of alimony was an "abuse of discretion on the part of the court."

The decision does not affect the city zoning ordinances, according to City Attorney James L. Mayson, who contended that the city will still have a right to save the families may reside under a single roof.

TAX OFFICE OPEN UNTIL 5 O'CLOCK THIS AFTERNOON
The annual rush of tax payers to avoid delinquency penalties is expected to begin Monday morning. The office of W. S. Richardson, Fulton county tax collector, will be kept open until 5 o'clock this afternoon to accommodate taxpayers. It was announced Friday that $200,000 of taxes remains to be collected of the taxes due for this year. The books close December 19, which is next Thursday.

'Write Letters Or Go to Jail,' Judge Tells Man

WILMINGTON, Del., Dec. 13.—(AP)—Judge Hugh Morris in United States district court today sentenced William L. Jones, of Washington, N. Y., to write 200 letters, at the rate of one each Sunday for the next five years.

Jones, a former resident of Birmingham, Ala., pleaded guilty to a charge of transporting a stolen automobile from one state to another. Judge Morris paroled Jones to the court with the explanation:

"This is the first time that I have paroled anyone to myself. I do not know whether you are worth it or not. I want you to write to me every Sunday so that I will receive the letters on Monday, not only telling me about your work but telling me what you are doing and what your thoughts are and your plans for the future, so that I can really know you."

"Fail to send one letter and you will go to the federal penitentiary at Atlanta for three years. Do not change your residence or your occupation without consulting me. The parole is for five years."

Jones was arrested September 23, 1928, in Canada, when they were found sleeping in the stolen automobile of O. W. Ramsey, of Raleigh, N. C. Searles pleaded guilty to a charge of violating the immigration law and was sentenced to three months in the Newcastle county workhouse.

CHRISTMAS TRADE AT 1928 LEVEL, HOOVER INFORMED

WASHINGTON, Dec. 13.—(AP)—Reports received by President Hoover from the department of commerce and other agencies were said at the White House today to indicate that Christmas buying is fully as good this year as it was in 1928.

The reports were said to show that in some sections the volume of buying was much better than last year. The comparison for various sections of the country is uneven, it was said, with some localities showing up better than others.

President Hoover considers these reports as a fair index of the general business situation in the United States.

Alabama Solon Quits Committee Because of DePriest

WASHINGTON, Dec. 13.—(AP)—Representative Allgood, democrat, Alabama, today resigned from the committee on enrolled bills because, he said, he "did not consider it any further honor to be on the committee" since the assignment of Representative DePriest, republican, Illinois, to it.

Allgood said he submitted his resignation today to Speaker Longworth. The resignation of the committee, the Alabama said, was largely honorary.

DePriest was assigned to three house committees, the other two being Indian affairs and invalid pensions.

4 WOMEN DENY GUILT IN HUNGARIAN MURDERS

More Than 100 Killed by Relatives To Obtain Their Property, Is Claim.

BUDAPEST, Hungary, Dec. 13.—(United Press).—Gesturing with toll-garlanded hands, four Hungarian peasant women told a crowded court at Szolnok today they were blameless in one of the greatest wholesale murders of history.

The four were the first of 42 defendants, mostly women, accused of killing more than 100 relatives since the war in an effort to obtain their land and till it as their very own. Arsenic was the most favored instrument of death.

Frau Rosa Holystva, 44, was the first to speak. She denied to the magistrate, to fellow villagers and to the foreign newspapermen in the court room that she had confessed to poisoning her husband.

Ladya Schestres, 71, stooped and wind-browed, denied she had been accessory to another poisoning.

Juliane Lipka, 66, charged with three murders and with being accessory to two others, made a blanket denial.

Marie Koteles, 50, said she positively did not kill her husband with poison.

The women were poorly dressed. Theirs had been a hard life. They had been speckled to start the day in the fields at 5 a. m. in summer, before 4 a. m. in winter. They plowed and tended the meager acres of their kin until late in the day. Once a year, they were lucky, they could buy a new scarf or a bright-colored apron.

The defense announced its principal argument in favor of the 42 defendants would be the drunkenness of the men of the little community of Theisswinkel, the village they all lived. The village is isolated in the Theiss river district.

The village, too, was overpopulated, and means of earning a living for 1,400 persons in the community was lacking because large estates surrounded it on all sides.

Most of the defendants have had little religious education, the defense claims, and may have felt justified in removing the wine drinkers who stood between them and the full fruits of their toil.

Anonymous notes first met the authorities of Szolnok and Theisswinkel on the trail of the wholesale murders. "Arsenic," the notes would say after some petty land owner died suddenly and strangely.

Finally, last summer, a note mentioned a name: that of Frau Josef Madarasz. Under police questioning she confessed poisoning her father-in-law.

She sought the arsenic from a midwife, Frau Balint Chordas, she said. Exhumation of the body proved the Madarasz case a murder.

Frau Chordas and another midwife, Frau Tazekas, attempted to commit suicide when they learned police were asking questions. The investigation immediately spread.

The peasant women, as fast as they were arrested, were placed two in a cell. Jail officials listened to their conversation. Some confessed. Others have maintained innocence.

The 100 alleged victims included soldiers invaded by war injuries and frequently unable to do their share of work in the fields, several young people and one or two children, as well as a complement of husbands, fathers, fathers-in-law, uncles and aunts.

SCORES ARRESTED IN EFFORT TO HALT STRIKE DISORDERS

TAYLORVILLE, Ill., Dec. 13.—(AP)—Seeking to curb disturbances accompanying the National Miner's Union coal strike, which has resulted in closing six mines in this territory, Christian county authorities today arrested 51 miners and 16 women and girls on charges of rioting and disturbing the peace.

The tiny Christian county jail, with accommodations for only 40, tonight held 60 prisoners, among whom were the leaders of the auto caravans of striking miners which has visited nine coal mines within a radius of 27 miles since Monday night.

None of the miners in Christian county resumed operations today. A small force of miners, who returned to Peabody Mine No. 8 at Tovey yesterday, were at work again today under protection of a force of special deputies.

ROTHSTEIN, SLAIN GAMBLER, LEFT $2,000,000 ESTATE

NEW YORK, Dec. 13.—(AP)—An accounting filed by the temporary administrators in surrogate's court today showed that the estate of Arthur Rothstein, Broadway gambler, slain a year ago last November, has assets of $2,512,933. The principal items were jewelry and real estate corporation holdings.

Nathan Burkan, attorney for the estate, filed a bill for $75,000 for legal services. In his petition the attorney said that the estate was in a poor condition at the time of Rothstein's death, but that various claims against it had been liquidated and it was now in excellent condition.

George McManus, another white way gambler, recently was acquitted on a charge of murdering Rothstein. Rothstein's will was admitted to probate last July.

RUBIO TO VISIT AT WHITE HOUSE ON DECEMBER 26

WASHINGTON, Dec. 13.—(AP)—President Hoover announced today that President-elect Rubio, of Mexico, will come to Washington December 26 and will be guest of the president and Mrs. Hoover at the White House.

The president-elect is now on a visit to the United States and expects to go to Johns Hopkins University hospital at Baltimore for an examination during his stay.

President Hoover said Rubio would be received as a distinguished guest and that a state dinner would be given in his honor.

The president added that the White House entertainment for the Mexican president-elect would be confined to the dinner and would not extend to an overnight stay.

WOMAN SHOPPER LEAPS TO DEATH FROM 8TH FLOOR

NEW YORK, Dec. 13.—(AP)—Abraham A. Pals, head of Henry Pals, Inc., bankrupt wholesale meat dealers, was sentenced today to one year and four months imprisonment in the federal penitentiary in Atlanta, Ga., on the plea of guilty to concealing $140,000 worth of assets from the estate of his father, Henry Pals, Abraham Pals, who had been missing for some time, surrendered to the authorities November 20.

Auto Association Elects Clarence Knowles Head

Clarence Knowles, president of the Knowles-Nash Company, was elected president of the Atlanta Automobile Association at its annual meeting Friday night at the Atlanta Athletic Club.

Mr. Knowles has been an important factor in the automobile business in Atlanta for a number of years and has been particularly interested in the affairs of the association.

Other officers elected were: T. P. Hicks, manager of the Auto Sales & Service Company, first vice president; H. R. Weill, manager of Atlanta Houdaille Company, second vice president; Raleigh Drennon, manager Drennon & Zahn, third vice president; C. H. Becker, vice president Goldsmith-Becker Company, secretary; F. F. Crowley, president of Atlanta

Packard Motors, Inc., treasurer; C. V. Hohenstein, executive secretary, and the following to serve as directors: Frank North, general manager of R. H. Martin, Inc.; J. M. Harrison, president of J. M. Harrison & Company; Ed Yancey, manager of Stewart-Warner Sales Company; and Wilfrid Moore, president of Wofford Oil Company.

The allied automotive trade lines division of the association, which includes all the members of the other, except automobile dealers, distributors and factory branches, met prior to the session held by the entire association and elected Mr. Weill president.

The other officers named were: O. J. Coe, manager of United Motors Service, vice president; Sam Katz, manager of Splittorf Electrical Company, secretary-treasurer, and Mr. Hohenstein, executive secretary. Those elected directors were: Mark C. Pope, Jr., manager of Electric Storage Battery Company; J. B. Moore, manager of Ansley garage; Carlyle Fraser, manager of Genuine Parts Company; Harry F. Gee, Jr., manager of Watkins Rebuilding Company; Ira Valentine, manager of Manufacturers' Service Company; and Mr. Drennon, P. G. Boudry, retiring president of the association, submitted the annual report, which showed that the organization had a remarkably successful year.

Following the business session, the annual banquet and entertainment features for which Al Belle Isle was responsible, were enjoyed by all.

Bank Clerk Gets Suspended Sentence In $10,000 Theft

NEW YORK, Dec. 13.—(AP)—A $1,680-a-year bank clerk whose theft of $10,000 from his employers was not discovered until he paid it back, received a suspended sentence today when he pleaded guilty to second degree grand larceny.

The clerk, Lorne Malloy, 29, obtained last July the signatures of Oden B. Talbot, chief clerk of the Guaranty Trust Company, on a $10,000 check which he said was due to another bank. Two months later, when Malloy was on leave of absence, the Guaranty Trust was surprised to receive $10,000 in restitution.

Malloy had won $11,000 on a horse race in London and paid back the money out of his winnings.

General Sessions Judge Cornelius F. Collins placed him on three years' probation today, with the understanding that he would go to the home of his father in Nobleton, Ontario.

Doheny's attorney, Frank Hogan, had asked that the trial begin on March 17 and government attorneys requested January 13 as the date.

The indictment against the wealthy oil man is one of the series growing out of oil leases made during the Harding administration and the charge is that Doheny gave Albert B. Fall, former secretary of the interior, a bribe of $100,000 in connection with the lease to Doheny's company of the Elk Hills naval oil reserve in California.

Fall was recently convicted on a charge of receiving the $100,000 from Doheny and was fined $100,000 and given a suspended sentence of a year in jail.

Mrs. Savage Honored At Tree Planting

In observance of arbor day the garden division of West End Civic Club, planted four trees last Wednesday on the club grounds on Gordon street, one of which was dedicated to the president, Mrs. J. H. Savage. In her dedication speech Mrs. J. H. Savage, chairman of the garden division, stated that "Just as the red bud is an ornament to every garden or park and will thrive in every location and variety of soil, so our president, Mrs. Savage, has proven loyal and efficient in each department of the organization. Under her able leadership the usefulness of the club has grown by leaps and bounds, therefore it gives us great pleasure to express our love and admiration by planting in her honor this tree, which by the beauty of its blossoms in the spring and its leaves in the fall, will be a lasting symbol of her character." Mrs. Savage, who has presided over the affairs of the club for two terms, expressed her appreciation.

Nelson Crist, of the H. G. Hastings Company, as the feature, made a plea for more living Christmas trees to be planted in the community. He stated that Georgia was fortunate enough to have a climate and soil in which many varieties of trees would grow, one of the city parks containing over 100 varieties, all of which were thriving. He advised all who intended to plant trees to select those which would live to be a joy through the coming generations.

Mrs. J. R. Bachman, garden chairman of the fifth district, was a distinguished guest and brought greetings from the president, Mrs. O. F. Freeman. Mrs. Bachman joined with Mr. Crist and Mrs. Lamb in the suggestion that other "living Christmas trees" be planted and that all club members refrain from buying either holly or cedar throughout the Christmas season, in order that these trees might be conserved as requested by the Georgia State Federation of Women's Clubs.

Miss Lucille Price, accompanied by Miss Marietta Faust, sang "Trees," adding "There are berries at the bottom of my garden" as an encore. The Blue Birds met at the home of Mrs. Carl Raper, chairman, and the following officers were elected: President, Dorris Menly; vice president, Martha Griffith; secretary, Isabel Herzberg; treasurer, Nancy Hill; chairman, telephone, Virginia Spinks; program, Dorothy Coraux; historian, Mary Dallas; membership, Helen Carter; books for Alto, Audrey Murphy.

Georgia O. E. S. Elects Officers.

At a meeting of Georgia Chapter No. 127, Order of the Eastern Star held Thursday evening, the following officers were elected to serve the chapter for the ensuing year: worthy matron, Mrs. Alma Allen; worthy patron, James A. Hollis; associate matron, Mrs. Pauline Dillon; associate patron, Marvin G. Russell; secretary, Mrs. Bessie Carmichael; re-elected; treasurer, Mrs. Sophie M. Thomas; re-elected; conductress, Mrs. Luella Shatterly; associate conductress, Mrs. Ruth Strickland. The appointed officers will be announced later by the worthy matron-elect. Georgia chapter has completed a prosperous year under the leadership of Miss Grace E. Langford as worthy matron and Dan H. O'Neal as worthy patron. The installation ceremonies will be held December 30, at 7:30 o'clock in the Oglethorpe Masonic temple, 193 1-2 Georgia avenue, S. W., conducted by the past matrons of Georgia chapter. Members of the order are invited.

BURGESS CHILDREN'S STORIES

REDDY TALKS WITH HOOTY.

BY THORNTON W. BURGESS.

A hint is like a planted seed; Its growth is marvelous, indeed.

—Old Mother Nature.

Reddy Fox had quite recovered from his wounds. You see, those shot from the terrible gun had little more than gone through his skin. They had smarted and hurt for a little while, but that was all. Reddy wasn't even lame. But he had learned one thing, and that was that he had got to be very careful in approaching the place where he had caught a turkey. He knew that it would not be easy to get another one. The farmer who owned those turkeys was keeping watch.

"I have got to get some one else to catch the turkey for us," thought Reddy. "Neither Hooty nor I can climb a tree. If we could climb a tree we might be able to get one of those turkeys while they were asleep. My, it would be easy for Yowler the Bobcat to get one of them. I am glad he doesn't know about them. He would spoil all our hunting. Hello, there Hooty! How the Owl hunting! He must be over on his favorite watch tower. I'll drop around that way."

So Reddy left the Old Pasture and trotted through the Green Forest until he came to the tall dead tree which is the watch tower of Hooty the Owl. He could see Hooty sitting very straight on the top of it. He looked almost like a part of the tree. He hooted, and Reddy grinned as he watched him lean forward a wee bit that he might listen better.

"Is it good hunting?" barked Reddy. Hooty looked down and in those great eyes of his was no sign of anger. He snapped his bill as only Hooty can snap a bill. "What are you doing over here around my hunting ground?" he demanded. "How can there be good hunting with so many hunters around?"

"Oh, I am not going to hunt here," replied Reddy mildly. "I am just passing along through. There is no harm in that, is there? By the way, Mrs. Reddy and I had good hunting the other night. We had the best hunting we've had this winter. We had a feast and it makes my mouth water just to think of it."

Hooty was all attention. He turned his head and looked down at Reddy as if to see whether Reddy meant what he had said or was fooling. "What was that feast?" he asked. "Turkey," replied Reddy. "Turkey. Did you ever eat turkey?"

"Once, just once," replied Hooty. "You certainly did have good hunting."

Farewell Dinner Given At Church.

Miss Cunningham Makes Marionettes For Museum Talk

Miss Cornelia Cunningham, well-known Atlanta artist, has constructed the marionettes, stage properties and costumes of the little figures for the one-act performance of "Beauty and the Beast" which will be given in connection with her talk on "The History of the Marionette" at 3 o'clock Sunday afternoon, December 15, at the High Museum of Art, 1282 Peachtree street. Miss Cunningham has made the bodies, faces and hands of little figures from paper mache molded, with evident mastery of the principles of sculpture, over a foundation of clay. The tiny hands have been wired so that they can clutch and hold as well as perform all of the characteristic acts and graces of the little life-like marionettes. The costumes for her figures, which reflect an unmistakable feeling for the art of design have been fashioned from fur coats, bits of lace, jewelry, and old-fashioned gowns. Each actor is complete and a distinct personality in face, figure and costume. The sword at the side of "The Prince" who will figure in "Beauty and the Beast" is a tiny West Point paper cutter, a miniature sword which lifts neatly out of its sheath. The magician formerly the policeman in Blue Beard. The beast is gowned in bits of an old fur coat, presenting a very real and auspicious character for the little playette. The cords which manipulate the figures are carpet thread. And all the appointments, the umbrellas, rubbers and the stage properties, tables, chairs and rugs are in proportion to the figures in the cast. The performance is open to the public.

Miss Grace Powell Makes Debut At Reception and Dancing Party

Miss Grace Powell, one of the most charming and popular of the debutantes, made her formal bow to fashionable society yesterday afternoon, when her mother, Mrs. Arthur Gray Powell, entertained at an elaborate reception at her home on Peachtree road. Arranged on each side of the receiving line, which stood in the music room, were the floral tributes sent the honoree by her many admirers. Mrs. Powell, the debutante, Mrs. Clarence Laws, daughter of the hostess, and Miss Betty Bruce Van Antwerp, of Farmers, Ky., composed the receiving line.

Artistic arrangements of southern smilax, combined with Perpet roses, decorated the reception rooms of the home where the guests assembled. The tea table in the dining room was overlaid with a real lace cover and ornamenting the center was a plateau of Perpet roses and lilies of the valley. Two silver candelsticks holding unshaded tapers graced each side of the centerpiece. Assisting in dispensing hospitality were Mesdames Samuel H. Sibley, Robert Pegram, Carroll Latimer, Frederic J. Paxon, J. B. McCrary, Earl H. Cone, Samuel Barnett, Marshall Foster, Frank M. Boston, John Barnett, James De Vaughn, of Montezuma; Winifred Ramsey, Jack Parker, of Greenville, S. C.; Misses Margaret Stovall, Nell Clayton, Isabelle Breitenbuecher and Estelle Boynton.

Handsome Gowns. Mrs. Powell wore a model of black lace made along modish straight lines. Completing her costume was a shouder corsage of gardenias. Miss Powell was gowned in ivory satin, fashioned princess style with long skirt with a tulle flounce at the hem and she carried a bouquet of Perpet roses and blue sweet peas. Mrs. Laws wore black chiffon and a shouder corsage of sweetest roses and lilies of the valley. Miss Antwerp wore a model of rose and gold tulle and her flowers were a corsage of Perpet roses and lilies of the valley.

Buffet Supper and Dance. As an aftermath to the reception Judge and Mrs. Powell were hosts at a buffet supper and dancing party in compliment to Miss Powell. Members of the Debutante Club and a group of young men composed the guest list. A COMFORTABLE AND PLEASING MORNING FROCK FOR WOMEN OF MATURE FIGURE.

6692. This slip-on frock is charming in pattern, as well as in tub-skirt, crepe or linen. The plait inserts at the sides of the front lend pleasing fullness. They are topped by patch pockets useful and decorative. The shoulders finished with narrow straps are lengthened to form short sleeve extensions over the top of the arms. A narrow belt holds the fullness at the waistline. This pattern is cut in eight sizes: 38, 40, 42, 44, 46, 48, 50 and 52 inches bust measure. To make the dress for a 46-inch size will require 31-2 yards of 35-inch material. To make the belt and pockets of contrasting material will require 1-4 yard 35 inches wide. To finish neck and sleeve edges with bias binding will require 2 yards 11-2 inch wide. The width of the dress at the lower edge with plait fullness extended is 21-3 yards. Pattern mailed to any address on receipt of 10c in silver or stamps. Send 2c in silver or stamps for our up-to-date Fall and Winter 1929-1930 Book of Fashions. Address orders to Beauty Fashion Dept., The Constitution, Atlanta, Georgia.

MOTHERS KNOW ITS WORTH

"I was all run-down and out of spirits before my third baby was born so I decided to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It helped me with all my troubles and gave me an appetite where before I didn't eat at all. I did all of my housework up to the day my baby came, as I am a farmer's wife and could not afford help. I feel just dandy now and I will answer any letters and I will tell every one how good this medicine is."—Mrs. Ira Arnold.

"I read an ad. in the newspaper and I started taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I will recommend this medicine to any woman who is in bad shape like I was. I used to get so tired after a few hours' work that I was even afraid in my own house in the daytime. I didn't care if I lived or died. I have given birth to eight boys and I always feel strong right after, since I have taken the Vegetable Compound."—Mrs. Maud Meyers.

You couldn't give a more welcome

Christmas gift

THAN SOUTHERN FRUIT CAKE

IT CERTAINLY solves a lot of problems on your Christmas list to give your friends and family Southern Fruit Cakes. Give one to Aunt Sue, who disapproves of perfume; to Cousin Jane, who is such an expert at cookery herself and will especially appreciate the virtue of this cake. Or to those inconvenient men who don't smoke.

You can buy them in sizes from one pound up to five pounds, and the larger ones come in wonderful tins. And you may be certain it soon will be all eaten up. For never was there a cake so popular.

Into it go the finest ingredients the world affords. Citron from Italy and spices from far-off tropic lands. Marvelous cherries from the finest orchards of France. Pineapple from Hawaii. And, in the light fruit cake, quantities of our own southern pecans.

Truly you could find no more welcome gift. Nor one more certain to please anyone to whom you give it. You can buy Southern Fruit Cake, either light or dark, at nearly any grocer's.

Sixteen members of the 1928 Golden Tornado which downed the California Bears last New Year's are to receive gold footballs from the Tournament of Roses committee.

The committee recently decided to give mementoes to the participating members of each team which has played in the annual affair since 1927. Approximately 100 of the footballs will be given.

Hal C. Reynolds, of Los Angeles, made the first of the presentations at Palo Alto recently, giving the charms to Captains Muller and Heinicke, of Stanford, and Captains Reigels and Phillips, of California.

Alabama's 1928 machine, which went to the coast to open 1927, is also eligible for the rewards under the present plan.

Every year who will be given the footballs included members of the Alabama and Stanford teams which battled to a 7-7 tie in 1927, members of the Stanford and Pittsburgh elevens who fought to a 7-6 decision favoring the Trojans in 1928, and members of the Tech team and their opponents of California in the 1929 fray, which Tech won, 8 to 7.

The Jackets who played in the game were Pund, Waddey, Drennon, Westbrook, Brooke, Thrash, Marce, Mizell Thomson, Lumpkin, Holland, Durant, Schulman, Dunlap and Jones.

Big Leagues Close Meeting With Deals Expected To Follow

TRUCE RUMORED IN WAR AMONG ROBIN HEADS

Most of Directors, However, Out of Town. Nothing Learned.

By Brian Bell.

Associated Press Sports Writer.
NEW YORK, Dec. 13.—(AP)—As echoes of the departing footsteps of major league baseball men drifted away after three long days of unfruitful days in New York, followers of the game found themselves in an attitude of watchful waiting for news of further player shakeups for the 1930 season.

Trading of playing talent was at a minimum during the meetings of the club owners but fragments of the conversational marathon suggested that there may be some tidings later of changes in uniform for some well known players.

Brooklyn today took time out in its civil war long enough to send a battery to the minors, transferring Win Hallon, a pitcher, to Los Angeles, and Dutch Henline, catcher, to Toledo.

ARMISTICE RUMORED.
Stories of a two-year armistice between the Brooklyn front office and the bench persisted, but no sign of a white flag could be seen at any part of the Ebbets field.

As baseball men talked of a possible agreement between the warring factions of the club, represented by Steve McKeever, on one side, and Wilbert Robinson, on the other, three-fourths of the "Big Four" directors was out of New York, President-Manager Robinson, tarrying briefly at Baltimore on his way to his Dwyer Hall, Ga., plantation. Secretary Joseph A. Gilletteau stopping in Boston and Frank B. York, director-attorney, "out of town," York has been mentioned as president with "Uncle Bob" continuing as manager, McKeever is vice president.

Some baseball trades may have been consummated during the New York meeting with news of same withheld for the time being. Clark Griffith, president of the Washington club, said he had no players for trade or sale but the St. Louis Browns thought he was jesting and suggested several combinations of players available for the release of Goose Goslin, who is a far better hitter than indicated by his 1929 batting average of .286. He led the American League in 1928.

SHAWKEY INTERESTED.
Bob Shawkey, new manager of the New York Yankees, was in a receptive trading mood during the conference but he was not particularly interested in the conversations he heard.

"I do not recall that any one offered me a single player who would help the Yankees," said Bob, the Gob. "The trading material our rivals

MEXICO LIKES PIGSKIN GAME; PRAISES ROOT

American Coaches To Go Back Next Fall—Game Aids Both Countries.

By Walter Trumbull.

(Copyright, 1929, by The Constitution and North American Newspaper Alliance.)
When it was decided to establish football at the University of Mexico Arthur Constantine got into communication with T. A. D. Jones on the subject of a coach. Naturally Mr. Jones suggested a Yale man, as a result, Reginald Root took charge. I have persuaded Mr. Jones to permit me to use portions of a letter he received from Mr. Constantine on the Mexican football situation.

Mr. Constantine begins by speaking of the beginning of international intercollegiate football, calling attention to the games played at Mexico City with Louisiana College and Mississippi College. He speaks of the forward strides football has made in Mexico and attributes this to Root, who, he says, established the games on a sound technical and an admirable ethical basis. Quoting further from Mr. Constantine's letter:

SOME PASSING:
"From a purely football point of view, the achievement of the University of Mexico eleven, in its first year of coached football, in completing 23 out of 28 forward passes on November 20 in the game with Mississippi, seems to me to merit more than casual mention. I doubt if this performance was ever equaled in the United States. The University of Chicago, in a game with Washington, completed 21 out of 35. Back in 1909, I am informed, Harvard, against Carlisle, completed 19 out of 29.

Mr. Roman, halfback, did the passing, and Lands, right end, and Elgoudy and Miranda, backs, the receiving. Lands caught 20 passes. He is 6 feet 3 inches tall, weighs 175 pounds, and is center on the university basketball team."

ANOTHER OOSTERBAAN.
If Mr. Lands was not personally known to the spectators, I should suspect that Bennie Oosterbaan had learned Spanish and crossed the border. The description fits. And if I didn't know that Friedman had been in the north playing professional football, I might think that he had changed his name to Roman. This famous Michigan pair never had a better aerial season than this.

Mr. Jones did not favor my printing some parts of the letter, but when I talked him out of it, I made no promises, so I again quote Mr. Constantine:

"I take this opportunity to thank you for the vital help you gave in enabling the University of Mexico to get the game on a correct basis. Root was an admirable coach. His influence over not only the members of the university squad, but over players in the secondary schools and even in the clubs, was extraordinary. He is the type of American who finds in a foreign people likeness, rather than difference, and he won everybody's deep respect."

WILL RETURN.
"Root has promised to return next year and to bring with him an assistant to help with the preparatory and secondary school eleven coming with the university from the United States. It will further interest you to know that the university faculty voted to confer on Root the degree of professor in honoris causa for his more seasons and hints that by 1931 it should be about ready to tackle Yale."

AID TO PEACE.
It appears to me, as well as to Mr. Constantine, that there is much significance in Mexico's evident aptitude for American football and in the fact that it is beginning to meet eleven of the United States' best college players. You understand men better when you play games with them and you are apt to like them better. There is no game which builds better that spirit which we call sportsmanship than football fairly played, and if individuals learn sportsmanship on the field they are likely to carry the same spirit into national affairs. Sportsmanship among nations would mean fewer wars."

At any rate, old graduates who go out to get football players for their native universities may soon be casting their eyes toward Mexico. A Western conference team once had a great end who was ineligible because he foolishly eluded Spanish under the impression it was a cinch course. With a Mexican star that would be one thing over which the coach would not have to worry.

'Shipwreck' Plays Here

Atlanta fans will have a chance to see one of the outstanding backfield men in the south in action here when "Shipwreck" Kelly, brilliant Kentucky star, steps in the Shrine charity game to be played at Grant field New Year's Day.

ON THE SIDELINES by BRIAN BELL

A mighty army of golfers from the United States, with their niblicks, mashies and woods in hand, will descend on Great Britain next spring. The invading force will be the most impressive Uncle Sam has sent out to win additional glory.

The Walker cup team, made up of the cream of the amateur talent of the country, will renew the international contests which have been biennial golf events since 1922. This team will include the open and amateur champions of the United States and two or three former champions. Bobby Jones, the open title holder, and Jimmy Johnston, king of the amateurs, are veteran Walker cup players.

The Walker cup defenders will also play in the British open and amateur championships, the latter a competition the Atlanta barstman never has won. As it is the only major title he has yet to deposit on his mantel place on Peachtree road, he will be keen for the opportunity.

He has held the British open cup twice. Glenna Collett, only woman player who has captured the championship of the United States four times, will lead a select group of star women challengers against the formidable opposition of Joyce Wethered, the British women's champion, who can outshoot a majority of men players on any golf course. Miss Collett was a finalist last year and has only one more step to negotiate.

The hard-hitting Glenn, who has moved into a class by herself in the United States, can stop any woman on one of her inspired days.

Hagen Leads.
The professional contingent, always keen for competition in England and Scotland where their game was born, will be led by Walter Hagen, who has won the British open four times. Hagen told his British friends after his triumph in the 1929 competition that he felt that he would like to remain there. The inclination seems well founded for good as he is at home, the Haig never plays golf in the United States as he does day in and day out in Great Britain.

The great stars of the professional game will be joining the British in an effort to unhorse Hagen, one of the greatest of the challenges being carried by the unorthodox but brilliant Leo Diegel. Leo wrestled the P. G. A. championship from Hagen when the master of the approach seemed to have an indefinite lien on the title. Diegel has also captured the Canadian open championship four times from fields including the best to be mustered on this side of the Atlantic ocean.

The drive on the British golf strongholds will start in the spring and go ahead under full steam until early summer when the boys will hurry home to see what they can do about defending their own crowns in the United States.

Every indication, six months in advance of the voyage of conquest, is that there will be no lack of golf excitement in 1930 in Great Britain.

FIVE VIRGINIA STARS TO PLAY IN GAME HERE

Injuries Keep Dunn Out of All-Star Charity Contest on Grant Field.

LEXINGTON, Va., Dec. 13.—Four of the five Virginia Military institute football players who were selected on the all-northern division team of the Southern conference have accepted the invitation to play in the charity game at Atlanta on New Year's Day.

They are Captain Al Hawkins, quarterback; Tommie Scott, end; Virgil Grow, center, and Louis Chadwick, tackle.

Captain-elect Roy Dunn, fullback, was badly used up in the Thanksgiving Day game against V. P. I., and is now out for the basketball team instead of running the risk of sustaining further injuries in football.

Considerable gratification was expressed at the annual V. M. I. football banquet when it was announced that the coaches of the upper division of the conference had nominated five of the six cadet players who have been placed on various all-state teams. It is believed that all of the Flying Squadron representatives will see service at some time during the Atlanta game.

Preliminary work in basketball, wrestling and boxing is occupying the attention of varsity and freshman squads at V. M. I. this week, but no competition will be held until after the Christmas furlough. Meanwhile there is an athletic lull, with Major Blandy Clarkson, athletic director, recuperating from an appendicitis operation, and Head Coach Bill Ratford attending the Southern Conference Coaches' Association meeting at Baton Rouge, La. V. M. I. is represented at the Southern conference meeting by Colonel William Cooper, business executive officer, and member of the faculty committee on athletics.

Strickland Named Manager of Team.
Announcement was made by the sponsors of the New Year's Day All-Star Southern conference football game which is to be played on Grant field, that Lynn Strickland, manager of the 1929 Georgia Tech gridiron squad, would act as manager for the southern division team during its training period and the game.

Strickland proved efficient as a lieutenant to Coach Alexander at the Flats this fall, and should care for the welfare of the All-Star team in the same way.

Mehre Aids Coach Bachman.
BATON ROUGE, La., Dec. 13.—(AP)—Coach Charles Bachman, of Florida, who will direct the southern all-stars in the New Year's Day charity game at Atlanta, said today that he will meet his squad in Atlanta December 27 for rehearsal.

Harry Mehre, youthful coach of the Georgia Bulldogs, has been selected as one of Bachman's lieutenants. The coach of the assistant of the assistant Florida coaches, probably Charlie Holsinger.

The northern squad also will begin practice in Atlanta, with Major R. Noyland, the coach, on the same date.

Russell Hi Beats Fulton, 25 to 21

Russell High school defeated Fulton High, 25 to 21, Friday afternoon in an extra-period game of basketball on the Wesley Memorial court. It was the first game of the season for both teams and although the scoring was high the passing was inaccurate at times. The scores at the end of the game was 18-11 and Russell forged into the lead early in the extra period.

Crawford, forward for Russell, was high point scorer with 10 points. Segrest, of Fulton, was next high with nine.

Zeigler, at guard for Russell, played an exceptionally good game as did "Shorty" Roberts, of Fulton.

ATLANTA SPEEDWAY

The SPORTRIGHT by Grantland Rice

Gene Tunney and Jack Dempsey happened to hit New York about the same time. They have been two of the most remarkable products of the ring, although about as opposite as two men could be.

They are far more interesting than such giants as Jeffries, Jack Johnson and Jess Willard, where bulk and strength played such star roles in the championship dramas of their reigns.

Dempsey weighed 183 when he whipped Willard. Tunney weighed 186 when he beat Dempsey at Philadelphia. So the heavyweight area for 10 years has been under the control of fighters weighing less than 190 pounds.

Dempsey was practically the last word in flaming ring spirit—speed, smash, crash and action.

Tunney was practically the last word in self-development with few outstanding physical qualities to start with. Tunney lacked with the speed, quickness and physical ability of Jim Corbett and other good boxers. He developed the speed that he had. But his main accomplishment, outside of perfect condition, was the slow and gradual improvement of his punching accuracy. He had at least four or five brands of punching to work with and while he was not in any way phenomenal with any brand he was at least effective.

Both Dempsey and Tunney worked out their pugilistic destinies effectively with what nature gave them. Of the two, Dempsey was naturally more interesting to watch, because offense is nearly always more interesting than defense. Dempsey's reign lasted for seven years and it was the most spectacular seven years from all heavyweight history. It was nearly all action and drama, tumult and excitement. It isn't likely that another Dempsey will come along for the next half century. For that matter it will be a long time before another heavyweight starts with Tunney's original limited physical equipment and builds himself into a champion. He came closer to getting 100 per cent from his capabilities than any competitor in the game.

COVERING FOOTBALL.
There is only one sure way of pleasing two rival football crowds in the treatment of a game. First: The better team must always win. Second: The losing team must always go down fighting or else achieve a moral victory.

It is a fairly well established fact that the better team does not always win in a football game—meaning, of course, as the game is played that one day. Through the recent season teams that played the better all-around football for certain afterwards were often beaten by teams that did not play quite so well. It is that kind of a game; as mentioned often before in these dispatches, the most basic way to get off all the competitions.

But the average football fan happens also to be the most biased, the most prejudiced and the most unreasonable of all who follow sport, no matter what other game you might name. He gets worked up into an emotional frenzy, giving little credit to lack of partisanship on the part of some football writer who doesn't give a rap if either team is beaten 100 to 0.

Most of them are fair to this extent—all they want is 100 per cent out of the best of it.

In the course of a season team after team is beaten that might easily have won with an equal split in the luck of the day. To suggest anything of the sort is to be placed as badly biased and unfair. It would be simple enough if the score always tells the story. It tells the story of the final result—but it doesn't always tell the story of the game as it happened to be played by six or eight running jumps.

LEARNING GOLF.
"Why is it," asks H. L., "that so few golfers ever seem to improve? Is it an impossible game for the average player to learn, or is most of the instruction unsound? There must be something of this sort when you see so many go on year after year without improving their scores."

One trouble with much golf instruction is that it takes up certain defects in the mechanics of the swing without going into the important fundamentals upon which the swing must be built. There are such fundamentals and without them all the correction of certain faults is of little help except for a day or two.

Another fault lies with the average golfer who hasn't the time or the patience to take these fundamentals and build on them through study and practice and hard work.

A tip that will correct a slice or correct a hook may last for a day or two or a week or two, but it is only a temporary cure. Unless there is an understanding of the fundamentals covering the swing and the willingness to work on these fundamentals, any hope of real improvement might as well be thrown through the window.

New Outfielder Added to Giants
NEW YORK, Dec. 13.—(AP)—A new outfielder was added to the roster of the New York Giants today when Morris Fitzgerald was purchased from the Springfield (Mass.) club of the Eastern league. The Giants were informed that Fitzgerald made a new league record by hitting 23 triples and led the circuit in stolen bases.

As the Giants added an outfielder they dropped an infielder, selling the release of Herb Thomas to Buffalo, of the International league. Thomas was sent to Toledo, of the American association, on option last year.

Carnegie Tech Battles Southern California Eleven Today

TROJANS RATED FAVORITES OVER EASTERN TEAM

Weather Is Expected To Be Warm; S. C. Changes Line-Up.

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 13.—(United News.)—Last-minute backfield changes appeared likely in the University of Southern California line-up as the Trojans went through a final light workout today in preparation for their game with Carnegie Tech Saturday.

Music was expected to start at one halfback post, leaving Pinkert at the other to do the kicking. However, it was possible that Shaver, sophomore punting ace, might be sent in at the start to replace Music.

There was still another possibility. Don Moses, a sensational line plunger, who has not been able to get going this year, may be started in the Music-Shaver position, leaving Pinkert to do the booting.

It was believed that the outcome of the game may depend upon the ability of Troy punters to come through.

The weather was expected to favor U. S. C. The sun shone brightly

Tech Boxing Team Is Delayed in Start

Chambers Busy Looking for Place to Work—Four Recruited From Grid Squad.

By Herb Clark.

Mike Chambers, trainer for Georgia Tech athletic teams, is finding it hard to get started in his new job—that of coach to the Jacket boxers. Practices were originally slated to start on December 10, immediately after the close of the football team. Mike had canvassed the grid squad and had a good working nucleus for his team picked from among members. He was all ready to start work and was to do his practicing at the Atlanta Athletic Club gym.

Former Cracker Infielder Dies

SWAMPSCOTT, Mass., Dec. 13.—(P)—John H. King, 27, former infielder for the Worcester club of the Eastern league and for the Birmingham and Atlanta clubs of the Southern league, died at the home of his mother here today. He leaves a widow and two children.

Today and there was every indication that Carnegie Tech would encounter a warm afternoon.

Coach Wally Steffen of the easterners admitted that he preferred a sloppy field.

Southern California remained at 10 to 7 favorite.

BULLETIN 23 IS DISCUSSED

suicide or the misappropriation of funds, a political scandal or a scandal among the city officials. Do these things help build character or tear it down? No, the front page tells of the failures.

"The sports tell of the heroic success in a limited field. Why should not mankind turn to the sport page, the page of enthusiasm to the page of the heroic, rather than the sordid things on life? Will the elimination of the sport page correct the news on the front page? If so, we will abolish all college sports today."

Dean Sanford pointed out that this was the fifty-third anniversary of the Southern league football and the Carnegie Foundation report was the fifty-third indictment.

CRITICAL YEAR.

"The year 1905 was a critical one in intercollegiate football," said Dean Sanford. He pointed out that in that year the game was seriously threatened, that there were magazine articles condemning it, that the stage reflected it in many plays, the most notable being "The College Widow," but that the game had survived that one and would survive this period of destructive criticism and go on to a better basis each year.

"Dr. Hopkins, of Dartmouth, has said that the athletics as existent in the college of today admittedly have their weaknesses, their serious faults and their unfortunate influence. Nevertheless, the history of the past quarter of a century shows not only an eagerness but a capacity in the field of athletic control for the correcting of evils and enhancing virtues viewed in terms of influence upon ideals of community life that has not been exceeded in other fields of human activity within or without college."

Dr. Sanford said that there was no sign of a break within the conference. It was only when he spoke of the need of a unified eligibility rule for the conduct of athletics after a student has satisfied the entrance requirements that he hinted one might come.

"This organization was formed after a break in the S. I. A. A. rules over the one-year rule," he said. "I could not imagine a break in the ranks here unless it should come because one blue pulled out because of a disagreement over some constructive measure. I cannot see why this rule does not come. We need it, and I believe we will get it in time."

"The most serious evil now is the surreptitious scholarship. We must and will define a scholarship. There is no need to discriminate against a boy simply because he is an athlete. That is unfair to him. We should find what we mean by a scholarship and then adhere strictly to our definition."

SCHEDULES.

Dr. Sanford also recommended a radical departure in the scheduling of games. He declared that if the conference is to function as it should, no conference institution should be permitted to schedule games with institutions not members of the conference.

Dr. Sanford pointed out that this would not interfere with intersectional games. If it should be adopted next year it would mean the end of games with S. I. A. A. teams.

There are a number of important measures to come before the conference Saturday at the executive session. The Sewanee representatives were prepared to introduce a radical measure asking that the colleges be frank about the commercialization of football and pay their athletes all expenses, such as board and tuition, but the measure was not taken seriously.

Tigers Seek New Coach.

Sewanee officials are on the look-out for a coach to succeed Kirkpatrick, who resigned a few days ago, but they do not expect to complete negotiations during this meeting. There are a number of candidates for the job on the mountain.

Gus Tebell, North Carolina State coach, looked Presbyterian College, of South Carolina, for a game in Charlotte November 1. This completes State's schedule, which will end next year on November 22 with the South Carolina game.

Alabama and Tennessee signed a new two-year home-and-home agreement today. Next year's game will be played at Tuscaloosa, on October 18. The following year the teams meet in Knoxville again.

Dr. S. V. Sanford, president of the conference and dean of the University of Georgia, who surprised the football world by getting Yale down to Athens last fall, intimates he may treat his friends to another football surprise in 1931.

Kentucky, which has added two conference opponents in Duke and Virginia, has a complete card except for the October 4 date. Florida and North Carolina are trying to get together on a date for 1931. Tulane has two open dates, but Dr. Wilbur Smith, the athletic director, expects to find them during the meeting. Vanderbilt is looking around for an opponent to take Sewanee's place. Most of the coaches spent today lining up officials for next year's game. Many prominent southern officials are at the meeting.

New Volleyball League Formed

A new volleyball league has been organized among the businessmen at the "Y" called the Politicians' league. Games will be played on Monday and Friday nights, and players have been placed on teams according to their political preference.

Judge Bennett is captain of the Republicans, "Red" Ketchen leads the Socialists, W. L. Hardin is captain of the Democrats, and Charley Clements leads the Prohibition team.

Players without a country or party such as bolsheviks, civilians, golfers, etc., were asked to join the party most nearly conforming to their ideals. The games will start at 8:30 o'clock each Monday and Friday night at the "Y" court and the public as usual is invited to witness the games free of charge.

Then Tech athletic authorities decided that the boxing team would do much better off doing its slugging on the campus. Plans were first made to partition off a section of the Jacket gym as a setting for the ring, but space did not permit. The next move was to try to spot the pugilists on the campus. Success was not forthcoming, however, and Chambers had to abandon his plans for immediate work.

A survey of facilities at the Flats left the boxers with but one place to go. That was the locker room and the locker room was filled with lockers.

STILL LOOKING.

Chambers set to work to make the best of things as they are and is finding his way through the difficulties. He plans to have a real plant ready for operation before the Jackets return from their Christmas vacations and will call his boxers to practice at that time.

Several schools in the Southern conference boast of complete boxing teams which take part in dual meets and in tourney fights. Chambers does not expect to enter his squad in college competition this season, though he may change his plans should the team show promise early in the practice grind.

LOCAL ACTIVITY.

Chambers expects at present to confine the competitive activities of his squad to the amateur shows at the Atlanta Athletic Club, with the peak of the season slated as the A. A. U. southern district tournament set for the club on March 14, 15 and 16.

Chambers has selected Vance Maree, Jim Brooke, Earl Runlap and Sam Colvin—all football players of a high order, husky young specimens, and noted for no tendencies to shrink from any opposition—as the leading candidates for the team.

Far from being averse to slinging a fist now and then, the men mentioned have frequently demonstrated a willingness to put their individual best hands forward with power behind the blow. Chambers is highly pleased with these proclivities and bases many of his hopes for a good record on the prowess of his recruits from the gridiron.

ALL INTERESTED.

The agitation for the boxing team has swept Tech, and Chambers will not be forced to depend on the heavyweights for his victories. Numbers of engineers have reported to him with inquiries about the sport, and Chambers expects to have a full-sized squad at work when the call to practice goes out in January.

Maree, Brooke and Colvin, faced with a heavy winter sport program, will find their time well-filled. What with working in the ring under Chambers' direction, this trio will also be practicing with Coach Roy Mundorff's basketball squad when January arrives. Colvin is already working with the court quintet, while Maree is keeping in shape for his appearance on New Year's Day as a member of the southern team in the all-star charity football game scheduled for Grant field.

Brooke is still nursing his injured knee, which has not yet healed sufficiently to permit of standing the strain of the speed of basketball, but hopes to be on the court soon.

Seven in Tie For Golf Lead

AVALON, Santa Catalina Island, Cal., Dec. 13.—(P)—Winding their way through 18 holes of sub-par golf, seven entrants in the Catalina Island $7,500 open today turned in cards of 63, three under perfect figures, to lead the favorites in the first round of the second annual tourney.

Absent from this card of leaders was Horton Smith, Joplin, Mo., professional and defending champion; Leo Diegel, Agua Caliente, National Professional Golfers' Association titleholder, and Walter Hagen, Detroit, Mich., British open champion.

In their stead stood Ray Mangrum, Los Angeles, Cal.; "Wild Bill" Melhorn, New York; Henry Guze, Bridgeport, Conn.; Chet Beer, Bakersfield, Cal.; Charles Guest, Los Angeles; Herbert Walter, Gary, Ind., and Neal McIntyre, Indianapolis.

Hagen turned in a 66 to equal par. "Larruping" Leo Diegel fell into bad luck on the par three fifteenth, taking a 67 and for a 67 and a 68. He was also in the 67 class as a result of golf which hovered about perfect scores, only to rise above on the final hole when he missed an easy putt.

Iowa Athletes Say Loans Paid

AN ECHO of the action of the University of Iowa athletic board in declaring 14 Hawkeyes ineligible for further competition because of having borrowed money from a "trust fund" was heard today. Several of those banned claimed they had paid back the sums loaned. Oren Pape, football halfback and sprinter on the track team, and Horace Musgrove, baseball player, among them.

The list announced yesterday showed that Pape owed $25, while Musgrove owed $45. Both claimed they had paid back the sums in full.

Meanwhile, the two coaches who suffered worst from the wholesale dismissal of athletes—Burr Ingersen, of football, and Hollie Williamson, of basketball, continued to lay plans. Ingersen lost the bulk of his backfield due to the athletic council action, but nevertheless continued to plan for a hard schedule. He said he expected to close negotiations tomorrow for a November 8 game with Marquette at Milwaukee, and had under advisement offers from several other schools.

Williamson already has 14 games lined up and was too busy today reworking his team's schedule to give the schedule much attention. He lost four regulars and two reserves in the house cleaning and has but two more days in which to draft a lineup for the intercollegiate game with Pittsburgh here Monday night.

Judges Selected For Field Trial

JACKSON, Miss., Dec. 13.—(P)—George R. Harris, of Norwood, Ohio, secretary of the amateur field trials of America, and Ambrose Gaines, Knoxville, Tenn., were selected today as judges in the cotton states field trials to be held at Moundsdale December 30. The amateur field trials, scheduled for December 16, will not be held this year.

Conflicting dates with the all-American trials also prompted the mid-south officials to call off their trials.

More Football.

CHICAGO, Dec. 13.—(P)—Loyola University of Chicago will close its football season Sunday, December 22, at New Orleans against Loyola University of the South, in a benefit game.

Polish Distance Runner Arrives

NEW YORK, Dec. 13.—(P)—Stanislav Petkiewicz, Polish distance runner visiting in the United States, appeared at the offices of the Amateur Athletic Union here today and presented his Polish credentials. He expressed his willingness to comply with all A. A. U. regulations, announcing that he would submit any invitation to a meet for A. A. U. approval before accepting it. The American governing body requires visiting alien athletes to obtain a separate permit for each race in which they participate.

Wildermuth Enters Indoor Track Meet

NEW YORK, Dec. 13.—(United News.)—Karl Wildermuth, of Georgetown University, has filed his entry in the Olympic sprint series at 80, 90 and 100 meters, one of five special events carded for the Brooklyn K. of C. indoor athletic meet, January 4. Wildermuth's entry was the first received. Others expected to compete include Jack Elder, of Notre Dame; George Simpson, of Ohio State, and Eddie Tolen, of the University of Michigan.

The last two Olympic sprint series were won by Wildermuth.

Buckley Dies

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Dec. 13.—(P)—Richard D. Buckley, 64, old-time big league baseball catcher, died here last night after a brief illness.

Rocket Boat Again Halted

MIAMI, Fla., Dec. 13.—(P)—Second attempt of Malcolm Pope, speed boat racer, to propel a small rocket powered boat at high speed failed today. Pope escaped injury from a tow rope from two outboard boats as the line caught around his neck when he exploded a part of the rockets.

Pope and his brother, Dick, who assisted him, said a third speed trial would be made soon.

The rocket propelled boat, Dixie Torpedo, was put into the waters of Bay Biscayne after final adjustment of the rockets and intricate system of wiring had been completed. The boat was reloaded with rockets after yesterday's speed mark attempt had failed.

Calles, Back From Europe, Says He Will Quit Politics For Private Life on Ranch

Former Mexican President Receives Warm Greetings on Arrival in New York by Countrymen.

NEW YORK, Dec. 13.—(AP)—Apparently in better health than when he passed through New York a few months ago bound for Europe, former President Plutarco Elias Calles, of Mexico, returned today aboard the storm-scarred liner Bremen.

He was greeted by a group of high Mexican officials and a representative of the United States department of state. Smilingly he answered many questions put to him by newspapermen concerning his own plans and the future of his country, which he pointed in bright colors.

He was unwilling, however, to comment on dispatches from Laredo, Texas, which said a warrant had been issued there for his arrest on a charge of conspiracy in the slaying of General Carranza, whose body was found in the Rio Grande seven years ago.

Calles and members of his party who were silent on a dispatch from Washington saying the state department considered that the diplomatic visa on the former president's passport would preclude any possibility of his arrest in the United States.

Senior Calles told reporters he had retired permanently from political life and was going to his ranch at Santa Barbara, Mexico. He said he saw no possibility of further revolt in Mexico because the last election was conducted on democratic lines.

He said that in Europe he had studied plans for the reorganization of the Mexican railroads. Mexico, he said, was on the edge of important economic development which would provide more work and better social conditions. After formal greetings aboard the liner and at the pier, Calles was escorted to the Pennsylvania hotel, where shortly after President-elect Pascual Ortiz Rubio, of Mexico, arrived for a conference. President-elect Rubio and several other prominent Mexican officials have been in New York for several days.

Among those who greeted Calles aboard the Bremen were Ambassador Manuel C. Tellez, of Mexico; Mexican Consul General Enrique Ruiz and Alan Dawson, representing the United States department of state.

Senior Calles said he would leave New York tomorrow on his journey back to Mexico. He and his party plan to go by way of St. Louis, but the point at which they will cross the border was not known.

U. S. WILL FORCE SAFE CONDUCT.

LAREDO, Texas, Dec. 13.—(AP)—The United States government will protect, with armed force if necessary, the passage of Plutarco Elias Calles, former president of Mexico, through Laredo, John A. Valls, district attorney here, who has threatened to arrest Calles in connection with the slaying of two Mexicans in 1922, was informed today.

Richard Boyce, American consul at Nuevo Laredo, across the Rio Grande in Mexico, called at the office of the district attorney today and notified him officially that the American government would protect with armed force the passage of Calles, whose body was found in the Rio Grande seven years ago.

A warrant charging Calles with conspiracy in the death of General Carranza, which was issued by the state department, he would respect and would not permit him to be arrested.

It has been a service which has been steadily increased from year to year, but it is still very inadequate, he asserted.

Troubadours To Sing.

Troubadours from East Atlanta will sing in a concert at 9:30 o'clock Sunday morning, which is to be pre-arranged for the adult department of the Grant Park Methodist Sunday school.

BELIEVE FRUIT FLY SMUGGLED INTO U. S.

Infection Would Never Have Occurred If Inspection Was Adequate.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 13.—(AP)—The Mediterranean fruit fly infestation might never have occurred, in the opinion of Dr. C. L. Marlatt, chief of the bureau of entomology, had a more thorough inspection service been set up at American ports.

His view was expressed before the subcommittee considering appropriations for the department of agriculture, the bill for which was reported today to the house. Dr. Marlatt said an increased sum was "urgently needed."

The inspectors have intercepted the Mediterranean fruit fly many times. Dr. Marlatt said. He continued: "Our belief is that this occurrence in Florida is due to some fruit that was smuggled in, possibly. I do not take much stock in the theory that it was maliciously planted there. I think that it was in some fruit that was smuggled in, not maliciously, but in ignorance; just the human instinct to get something by that is supposed to be excluded."

Where there are inspectors, the number of interceptions is very large, he said, including some of the worst types of insect pests.

The maritime inspection service was termed by Dr. Marlatt the "first line of defense, where we stop so far as possible new pests arriving in passenger's baggage, ships' stores, crews' quarters, parcel post and commercial shipments entered under permit."

WOMAN IS SENTENCED

Mrs. Rice Given 12 Months for Shoplifting.

A plea of guilty in Judge Jesse M. Wood's criminal court of Atlanta Friday resulted in a 12 months state prison term for Mrs. Sarah H. Rice, of Greenvale, N. C., who was charged with shoplifting. Judge Wood told that the woman is under a federal bond for alleged possession of morphine.

For a long hot month, he and his little troop had scoured the desert for this sin-aited band of marauders charged with the thefts of camels, horses and goats, and enough murders to have sent the whole unsavory gang to the guillotine several times over. At last he had come upon them. But the justice that he had done for his men and six of the Arabs had perished. But five were his prisoners now and best of all their ring-leader, Abd el Kader.

FRIDAY AIR MAIL

From: New York. Mail Trained Out. 8:25 a.m.
New Orleans. Mail Trained Out. 8:25 a.m.

One of the pleasantest jobs we can think of, at least during this persistent spell of foggy weather, is that of the air mail pilot, who, by virtue of the unpleasant meteorological conditions, is unable to do a lick of work. Yesterday, only one mail plane left the ground, the Interstate ship flying a temporary rift in the fog-blanket to the north and selling out, as the saying goes, for Chattanooga.

As for the others, not a single plane arrived during the day and not another one was enabled to take off. The southbound New York plane couldn't leave the east and the mail was sent by train all the way. Northbound from New Orleans, the Gulf coast plane was forced down at Aniston, from which point the mail was trained. The northbound plane from Miami could get no farther up the coast than Daytona Beach, where the Chicago mail was sent all the way by train. Altogether, it was one of the most disastrous days air mail operators at Candler field have experienced in some time.

The Aero Club of Atlanta, which is the new designation of the local chapter of the National Aeronautic Association of the United States of America, is to hold its next meeting and, incidentally, its final meeting of the year at 12:30 o'clock Monday afternoon in Hall No. 2 of the Chamber of Commerce. Secretary William A. Dunlap announced Friday that plans of the organization for the coming year would be discussed and that other matters of interest would be up for consideration. All members are urged to be on hand for the festivities.

Postmaster Edward K. Large announced Friday that the closing time for the posting of air mail matter for New York and other eastern points had been changed to the following: Main office, 5:40 p. m. and Station B (Garnett and Forsyth streets), 6:25 p. m. He added that information on arrivals of outgoing and incoming mail planes are posted daily in Room

FUNERAL SERVICES FOR MRS. MOBLEY SET FOR TODAY

Funeral rites for Mrs. J. R. Mobley, beloved Atlanta woman, who died Thursday night at the residence, 984 Juniper street, N. E., will be conducted at 2 o'clock this afternoon from Spring Hill chapel. The Rev. Samuel T. Senter will officiate and interment will be in West View cemetery.

It is expected that members of the Ladies' Memorial Association will attend the rites in a body. Mrs. Mobley was an officer of the association.

Funeral services will be held at 2 o'clock this afternoon from Spring Hill chapel. The Rev. Samuel T. Senter will officiate and interment will be in West View cemetery.

The longest air mail haul in the history of aviation ended this week with the safe arrival in New York of the first air mail from Montevideo, Uruguay, on the east coast of South America. More than 8,000 miles of air lines were covered by this historic mail in 11 days, which beats the best steamer time by about six days. The first 6,700 miles were covered by the air mail lines of the Pan-American Airways System, which extends from Miami down the west coast of South America to Santiago, Chile, and then across the continent of South America to Buenos Aires and Montevideo on the east coast. At Miami the mail, 70 pounds in weight, was taken by the Pitcairn Lines for swift transmission to Atlanta, Washington, Philadelphia, New York and other large cities.

MRS. J. W. JOHNSON DIES

Last Rites Will Be Held Sunday Afternoon.

Mrs. J. W. Johnson, 76, died Friday afternoon at the residence of her daughter, Mrs. John M. Ogden, on Oakdale road. She had been ill several weeks. She was a member of Druid Hills Presbyterian church.

Other surviving members of the family are two sons, R. A. Matthews and D. C. Johnson, and three other daughters, Mrs. Berna J. Gardner, Mrs. Odessa Haskell and Mrs. S. D. Bell.

Funeral rites will be held at Spring Hill chapel at 2 o'clock Sunday afternoon, with the Rev. W. H. Boggs officiating. Burial will be in West View cemetery.

GOVERNMENT OF GEORGIA

TO THE SUPERIOR COURT OF SAID COUNTY.

The petition of J. E. Haley, W. E. Haley, H. C. Jones and J. W. Brown, respectfully sheweth:

1. That petitioners desire for themselves, their associates, successors and assigns, to be incorporated for a period of twenty years, with the right of successive renewals as provided by law under the same name and style of

RALEY-BOHN ROOFING CO.

2. That the principal office and place of business of said corporation shall be in Fulton County, Georgia, but petitioners are the right to establish such branch offices elsewhere as may be deemed advisable.

3. The object of said corporation is pecuniary gain and profit to its stockholders.

4. The business to be conducted by the corporation is that of a general building business, including the erection, repair, reconstruction or otherwise of buildings, houses, bridges, generally all kinds of building material, machinery and equipment of all kinds and character, and to act as agent for others and any and all other similar or related enterprises and doing all things which usual success or incident to the conduct of said business.

5. The minimum capital stock of said corporation shall be Five Hundred ($500.00) Dollars, divided into five hundred shares of the par value of One Hundred ($100.00) Dollars per share, and petitioners desire the right to increase said capital stock at any time by a majority vote of the stockholders then entitled to vote, and to decrease said stock in the same manner, to one or more shares not below the minimum capital stock of Five Hundred ($500.00) Dollars, and said increase or decrease to be either in common or preferred stock and said stock when issued to have such rights, powers, privileges and immunities, and to be subject to such restrictions and conditions as may be determined by the stockholders of this corporation.

6. Petitioners ask that said corporation shall have the right to receive in payment for shares of its capital stock either money, services, property or other thing of value available for its corporate purposes, taken at a fair and reasonable valuation.

7. Petitioners desire that the right for said corporation to sue and be sued, to plead and be defended, with and to have in a common seal, and to buy, own, sell, trade and lease, generally in its corporate name, including stocks and bonds in other corporations, suitable for carrying out the business of this corporation.

WHEREFORE, petitioners pray that they may be incorporated under the name and style aforesaid, with all the rights, powers, privileges and immunities herebefore set forth and all laws are now allowed to or may be hereafter allowed to similar corporations under the laws of Georgia.

GRiffin, Ga., Dec. 13, 1929.

Filed in office, this 13th day of December, 1929.

C. MILLER, Clerk.

STATE OF GEORGIA.

I, T. C. Miller, Clerk of the Superior Court of Fulton County, Georgia, do hereby certify that the foregoing is a true and correct copy of the petition for incorporation of the RALEY-BOHN ROOFING CO., as the same appears of file in this office.

Witness my official signature and the seal of said court, this 13th day of December, 1929.

BAD CHECK CHARGE FACED BY GROOM

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Dec. 13.—(AP)—J. Hyde Abern, 30, alias S. Rogers Morrison, said to be a New Orleans mortgage broker and oil dealer, stepped into a loop hotel here today to spend his honeymoon, only to be arrested for investigation on a series of bad check charges. He married Miss Marie Pierce, Cincinnati radio artist, a few hours earlier in Marion, Arkansas.

City detectives who arrested him charged he had contracted for $5,000 worth of automobiles, two $10,000 houses, $500 worth of clothing for his bride and issued more than $5,000 in bad checks.

The man, who gave his name as Morrison, arrived here December 9. He registered at one of the leading hotels and later purchased an expensive automobile, giving the "Levi Brokerage Company, New Orleans," as reference. Police said there is no such firm in New Orleans.

The next day he decided he wanted another automobile—a $4,000 one. He gave a check for $570, drawn on the "First National bank of New Orleans." Police said there is no such bank in New Orleans.

Then the next day he took his sweetheart to an exclusive shop and purchased a $400 coat, giving the "Levi Brokerage Company" as reference. He gave his hotel as reference.

He negotiated with one realtor for a $40,000 home, made arrangements to take it over and the same day gave a check for $40,000 to the "Levi Brokerage Company." He asked Tolliver to accompany him to the home, but Tolliver did not, and cashed a $10 check with him, with which he paid wedding expenses.

Police arrested him yesterday and found cards identifying him as Abern.

YOUTH SURRENDERS ON SHOOTING CHARGE

PELAHATCHIE, Miss., Dec. 13.—(AP)—Millard Hamm, 18-year-old youth, was in connection with the wounding of two officers, surrendered to Rankin county authorities today after a posse had failed to find him.

Hamm voluntarily returned to his home and then notified county authorities, who had spent yesterday and the previous night searching the woods for him.

The youth was placed in the county jail at Brandon and held without formal charge pending the outcome of the pistol wounds inflicted on Marshal J. H. Nolin and his deputy, R. E. Murray, veteran Rankin county officers. Both are in a Jackson hospital.

Hamm is alleged to have fired on the officers Wednesday night while they were attempting to arrest him for creating a disturbance at the house of a negro.

Returning to his home today exhausted he sent word by his mother that he was willing to surrender peacefully and was asleep on the arrival of Constable Q. H. D. Purvis to arrest him.

His father and brother, Lee, temporarily detained during the boy's arrest, were released after the boy was jailed.

Hamm told officers he had been hiding "in the woods" all the time and that on several occasions he had been the bark of the dogs trailing him.

Hoover Asks For Caricature Causing Furore

WASHINGTON, Dec. 13.—(AP)—The Arts Club seems unable to decide whether a certain caricature of the United States is in good taste and whether, if itself, may pass upon the question.

The drawing, a caricature in oils, by Charles Dunn, Washington artist, was a caricature of Calvin Coolidge, Andrew Mellon and Alfred E. Smith, was on exhibition at the Arts Club. It was simply another exhibition of the drawing by Charles Dunn, who is a member of the club dropped in. They did not seem to mind the emphasis put on Mr. Coolidge's nose by the artist nor the caricature of certain features of Mr. Mellon and Mr. Smith, but they stopped before the Hoover caricature and pronounced it "disrespectful."

Removal of the drawing was demanded and removal followed. Now rumor has it that the president has heard of the furore through his secretary, George Akerson, and he has expressed a desire to see the caricature.

A similar caricature by Dunn appeared in the inauguration issue of a Washington magazine, but if and where criticism was expressed at the time it did not reach the newspapers.

SENATOR WATSON PROMISES PLACE FOR SHOALS BILLS

WASHINGTON, Dec. 13.—(AP)—Muscle Shoals legislation before congress almost constantly since the war—was promised today first place on the senate calendar after the tariff bill is passed.

There was no assurance of when the tariff bill would be disposed of by Senator Watson, of Indiana, the republican leader, told Black, democrat, Alabama, on the senate floor that he would be willing to follow the Muscle Shoals question.

Senator Norris, republican, Nebraska, whose resolution for partial government ownership of the gigantic Alabama water power project is now on the senate calendar, also announced that he would move to take up that resolution as soon as the tariff bill is passed.

Senator Black received these assurances after he announced that he would not object to immediate consideration of the Muscle Shoals legislation. He had demanded that the senate agree to take up Muscle Shoals after the tariff bill is passed.

SHEFFIELD RITES TO BE CONDUCTED IN COLUMBUS

GRiffin, Ga., Dec. 13.—(Special.)—The body of Clarence Sheffield, 28, World War veteran, who died here of pneumonia, was taken to Columbus yesterday for interment. Mr. Sheffield formerly lived in Columbus, having been in Griffin only a short time. He served with the 14th cavalry during the World War. He is survived by his widow, a brother, Melvin Sheffield, of Columbus, and a sister, Mrs. Pearl Seigel, Montgomery, Ala.

LAST RITES HELD FOR J. C. SHANNON AT JEFFERSONVILLE

JEFFERSONVILLE, Ga., Dec. 13.—(Special.)—Funeral services for J. C. Shannon, one of Jeffersonville's most prominent and beloved citizens, were held from the Baptist church here. Interment was in the family burial plot in the church cemetery. The Rev. S. E. Wingfield, assisted by the Rev. J. E. Channell, Methodist pastor, officiated.

Mr. Shannon was born in Columbia, Mo., July 22, 1853, and came to Georgia when young. He lived with his uncle, the late Daniel G. Hughes, of Twiggs county, several years before his marriage to Virginia Solomon Faulk in 1878.

He is survived by his second wife, Helen, nee May Lou Faulk, sister of his first wife, whom he married in 1893; four sons, J. C. Shannon, Jr., J. D. Shannon, D. H. Shannon, of Jeffersonville, and W. F. Shannon, of Macon; two daughters, Mrs. R. I. Butler and Miss Laurie Shannon, of Jeffersonville, and a sister, Mrs. Cornelia Shannon White, of LeRoy, N. Y.

Mr. Shannon was a member of the First Christian church, of Macon, Ga. As a mark of respect to his long and active life in Jeffersonville, all business houses and public schools of the city were closed for his funeral.

Mr. Shannon was the second son of James Shannon, noted educator. He was brother-in-law to the late Dr. Richard D. Shannon, of Columbia, Mo., who for a number of years was state superintendent of schools in Missouri, and the late Judge L. D. Shannon, of LeRoy, N. Y.

His father was a native of the Emerald Isle, born in County Monaghan, Ireland, in 1799, and came to America shortly after his graduation from the Royal institute at Belfast in 1821. During his career as an educator, he was president of the Richmond academy at Augusta, Ga.; professor of mathematics at the University of Georgia; president of the State College of Louisiana; president of Bacon college at Harnsborough, Ky.; president of the State University of Mississippi from 1849 to 1851; and president of the Christian University at Canton, Missouri.

Mr. Shannon's mother was Frances Moore Shannon, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Anna Moore, of Athens, Ga.

EDWARD THOMPSON DIES IN AMBULANCE ON WAY TO HOSPITAL

Edward Thompson, 66, of 929 Puliam street, died suddenly Friday morning en route to Grady hospital after he was stricken downtown.

Realizing his condition, Mr. Thompson went to the home of George Abalan, a friend, in a downtown hotel and requested him to summon a physician. Before Abalan could complete the call he collapsed and died in an ambulance as he was rushed to the hospital.

Mr. Thompson was a well-known insurance agent and was a member of Gate City lodge, No. 942, F. & A. M.

In addition to his widow, he is survived by three daughters, Mrs. G. G. Smith and Misses Maggie Mae and Willie Thompson; a sister, Mrs. John Ashworth, of Dalton-in-Furness, England.

Announcement

The announcement of the formation of the new company of LIPSCOMB-WEYMAN-CHAPMAN COMPANY is of great interest to the financial and insurance circles of the Southeast.

LIPSCOMB-WEYMAN-CHAPMAN COMPANY has purchased the loan, insurance, renting and real estate business of Weyman & Connors and the insurance business of Lipscomb & Company, two of Atlanta's oldest business houses.

The operations of LIPSCOMB-WEYMAN-CHAPMAN COMPANY become effective immediately with offices in the former quarters of Weyman & Connors at 58 Marietta Street.

The Penn Mutual Life Insurance Company of Philadelphia has nominated LIPSCOMB-WEYMAN-CHAPMAN COMPANY correspondent for its mortgage loan business in this section.

The new company has selected its personnel with the view of rendering the most courteous and efficient service available in the operation of its mortgage loan, insurance, renting and real estate departments.

The patronage of the public is cordially invited.
